Jesus / Now

By Leslie Brandt

We long to hear the Lord's voice and to be near Him. Only He can heal, strengthen, guide, and make our lives worth living. Our Lord is near us and He speaks to us. His words, in the Bible's four gospels, are restated beautifully and poetically in Jesus/Now.

Our Lord calms our souls with His words of comfort. He renews us with His words of inspiration and guidance. He strengthens us with His words of hope. Even the knowledgeable Bible student will gain new insights from Jesus/Now. Reading Jesus/Now will surely enrich your spirit by reaffirming, challenging, and enlightening your faith. Other books in the series are Prophets/Now, Psalms/Now, and Epistles/Now. Brandt is also the author of Good Lord, Where Are You? God Is Here—Let's Celebrate, Can I Forgive God? The Lord Reigns—Let Us Serve Him, Living Through Loving, Contemporary Introits, Praise the Lord!, Why Did This Happen To Me? and Great God, Here I Am.

Preface

It is presumptuous enough to speak or pray as the psalmist might in the 20th century (Psalms/Now), or to write as the apostles might were they living today (Epistles/Now); but to attempt to interpret Jesus' teachings in the same manner may offend rather than enlighten some of my readers.

Nevertheless, the purpose of most sermons or written meditations is to make those ancient thoughts and words of the Scriptures living and relevant to those who are living in this century. This is what I have attempted to do with the words that Jesus spoke as recorded in the four gospels.

Thus the words of this volume are an attempt to relate to you what I hear Jesus saying today. It is entirely possible that you may hear Him saying something more—or less—than what I have tried to relate. In the event that he is speaking to you some of the same words I hear Him saying, I sincerely hope that the reading of parts or all of this volume will reaffirm or provoke or challenge or enlighten or comfort in accordance with your specific needs.

Leslie F. Brandt

For Those Who Are Seeking God

He Is Seeking for You

The kingdom of God has come near to you.—Luke 10:9b

You say you are seeking for God.
It is strange that you have not found Him.
He has been near to you—He is near to you;
indeed, He has been seeking for you.
Perhaps you have been looking for Him in the wrong places;
you expect to find Him at the end of some religious pilgrimage,
in some holy temple, in a picture, a book,
a vision or a dream.

Maybe you are not seeking for God at all but for a happy feeling, an ecstatic experience, something that will numb you to the sufferings
and atrocities of this cruel world.
You might even settle for a bit of magic,
a smattering of security, a miracle or two.

Unless the spirit of darkness succeeds in stifling your inner spirit with the ephemeral delights of this passing world, you will continue to seek for God—
or to yearn for Him—
even until He finds you.
He is the fulfillment of your deepest needs.

You were made by Him and for Him;
you will not find true joy or peace unless you return to Him—unless you allow Him to find you.

Luke 11:10; 12:31

God Is Revealed

Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born anew, he cannot see the kingdom of God.—John 3:3

If you are truly seeking God, you can find Him through Jesus Christ—
what He has done on your behalf.
He has come from God;
His Spirit seeks to unite with your spirit,
to reflect and effect the Father's forgiving love and to restore you to His order and orbit
for your life.
It demands, however, a radical change in your life.
It is very much like being physically born again.
It resolves in embracing Christ and His teachings, in following Him in respect to His activities.

Acknowledge your fruitless striving,
your selfish struggles to measure up to God's standards and purposes for your life, and accept the righteousness He has made possible through Jesus Christ.

You cannot do for yourself what God has already done for you.

You can, by His enabling Spirit, turn away from sin, rejoice in His forgiveness, and dedicate your life to living by His precepts and objectives as Jesus has made them known to you.

God loves you.

He has revealed that love in what He has done for you through Jesus Christ.

You can never destroy God's love, but you can resist it in carelessly ignoring His redeeming love or in your foolish efforts to be deserving of His love.

God desires that no one should perish.

He, through Christ, endured much suffering on your behalf that you might be reconciled to Him.

You who were born in sin may, by His Spirit, be born anew, freed from sin's damning guilt, free to live forever, with others who follow Christ, as God's beloved children.

John 3:1-15

Where You Can Find Him

Jesus said to him, "I am the Way, and the Truth, and the Life; no one comes to the Father, but by Me. If you had known Me, you would have known My Father also; henceforth you know Him and have seen Him.

John 14:6-7

The Spirit of God does not confine Himself to the church pulpit or the sacred Scriptures.
Whereas God's infinite love is surely revealed in these places,
you may not have been ready for such revelations.
Perhaps you have felt His presence during a meeting with a stranger; while reading a book, listening to a chorale, conversing with a friend.
On the other hand, you may not really hear His voice until you have reached the dead end of a long and twisted road.
You may experience a spent and wasted life,
painful conflicts that you are unable to control,
burdens you cannot carry, before,
in a final, desperate reach for meaning,
you will encounter His patient love or grasp His saving grace.
Then only, through the Christ of the Scriptures which you previously ignored, you may hear and respond to the blessed invitation to come to God and cast your life with all its burdens upon Him.

Yet there are multitudes who will never find the God of love and mercy because they fail or refuse to recognize His loving-kindness through Christ.

Jesus continues to be “the Way, the Truth, and the Life”;
no one comes to the Father except through Him.

For those who do come,
there is rest from their fruitless labors,
forgiveness of their sins,
and the guarantee of everlasting life.

They become God’s beloved children, sons and daughters, with Christ,
of their gracious Father in heaven.

Thanks be to God;
your relationship to Him is not dependent upon your intelligence or your profound insights.

It comes from God Himself.

It is appropriated by a simple, childlike faith,
by submitting to His love and yielding to His grace.

John 4:7-14; 14:5-7

In Response to Need

Come to Me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.—Matthew 11:28

Those, of course, who assume they are whole, who apparently have no need for God,

are not likely to find Him—
at least not while they are in that frame of mind.
Those who are ill reach out for healing.
Those who are hungry will scrounge about for food.
Those who are poor seek for material riches.
Thus those who are poor in spirit, who realize their lack, their emptiness, their sickness,
the purposelessness and powerlessness of their lives,
they are the ones to whom Jesus has come to witness.
They are the ones in whom Jesus can do the work of fulfilling, healing, forgiving, empowering, and to whom He can reveal the God of their creation, their loving heavenly Father.

The self-sufficient, self-important, self-contained inhabitants of this world are out of God's reach.
The Spirit of God must break up the shallow, hard-packed soil;
this often involves painful,
even devastating, experiences before the seed
can be sown and ultimately bear fruit.

You may remember the story Jesus once told about the treasure buried in a field—and the surprised finder who sold all he had in order to purchase the field that he might obtain the treasure—
or about how new wine bursts old wineskins.
This is what this new birth, this new life,
this reconciliation to God is all about.
Coming to God demands a complete turnaround,
a selling out, a total relinquishment of one's life and being to God and His purposes.
Darkness cannot exist in the midst of light;

nor can the darkness of man's vain attempts and fruitless endeavors exist in the light of God's required and freely given righteousness.

It is true:

Only those who come to God by way of Jesus Christ
will be made whole again.

Matthew 11:25-30; 13:18-23, 44-46

What It Means to Believe

Truly, truly, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you have no life in you; he who eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day.—John 6:53-54

You who seek God must try to understand what it really means to believe in God.

As food is eaten and thus received into the body and thereafter supports the total life system of the individual,
so the Spirit of God must be embraced, absorbed,
taken into your spirit to become the source of your strength as well as the motivating purpose for your lives and living.

Jesus has come from God.

Assuming your humanity and subjecting Himself to the same forces that shape your lives,

He has identified with you in order that He may relate to you.

He is the Light of God and the Love of God,
the communicator of His grace to His creatures in this world.

You are to identify with Him, partake of Him, receive Him as your Savior and Lord.

When you do this, you become restored children of God;
and you become, with Christ, lights that force back
the darkness that threatens to shroud this planet.

When you do this, you truly begin to live—
for yourselves, for others, and forever.

Your profession of faith is important.

If it is sincere,
it is a beginning—but only a beginning.

A genuine profession will be followed by obedience to Christ's will and purpose for your lives.

You become one with Him as He is already one with God.
You become with Him the children and servants of His Father.

There are scores of people who assume they are working for Christ and yet have not become identified with Him.

There are others who seek to use Him and His name
to push their own projects
or further their self-centered objectives.

They even call on Him for help when life becomes too much for them to handle.

Yet they have not allowed Him to become the source and power of their lives.

They have not really learned what it means to believe in God.

John 6:53-58

The Faith of a Child

Truly, I say to you, unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

Matthew 18:3

You who have heard Christ's teachings and followed His activities
may have been offended, even repelled, by what He has said and done.

His sayings and actions have at times seemed absurd.
They sometimes appear to contradict human rationale—even some of the religious activities that you sincerely participate in.

Maybe you are too wise in the ways of the world to be in tune with the voice of the Spirit.

Perhaps this is the reason that children are such likely objects of divine love—and readily respond to God's love for them.

Their minds are not yet cluttered with regulations and religious ceremonies and intellectual pursuits, with human reason and logical analyses.

They have not yet assumed the necessity of earning or meriting the gifts that are placed in their hands.
They give love in response to love.

Is it to be wondered at, then, that Jesus enjoins you to become like children in order to find God?

The laws that govern your universe are important.
You have been intellectually equipped to utilize those forces to benefit yourselves and humanity about you.

But they are not expected to take the place of God
in your lives.

They are superseded by Him who is sovereign over those forces and who lovingly created and implanted you within them.

The redemptive and reconciling power of God is received through the mightier force of faith, a power that is remarkably present in the hearts of children.

It is this kind of faith that gladdens the heart of the Father, that will unite you to Jesus Christ and therefore to God, forever.

Matthew 18:1-4

When You Seek for Truth

I am the Bread of Life; he who comes to Me shall not hunger, and he who believes in Me shall never thirst . . . All that the Father gives Me will come to Me; and him who comes to Me I will not cast out.—John 6:35, 37

Are you really concerned about truth?
Will that insatiable longing within you be satisfied with nothing less?
Then you are blest indeed.
God is preparing you for what He desires to give you.

You may be tempted to follow many shepherds,
to knock on many doors,
to listen to many voices and walk many paths, before you finally realize that what you have been seeking has been close beside you all the time.
It is that truth which has been revealed to you through the words and deeds of Jesus Christ.
He has not spoken about or for Himself;
He has spoken on behalf of His Father, who sent Him.
He knew God because He came from Him.
He came to you that you might know the Father and relate to Him as His beloved son or daughter.

You have heard Jesus speak of Himself as the Bread of Life,
the Living Water,
the Way and the Door,
the Shepherd of the sheep.
Hear His words, hear them carefully,
for they are not His alone;
they are the very words of God.
Look again at what He has done—
for you and the human family about you.
How can you fail to see that He is the way to knowing and experiencing the saving love of God?
Take Him into yourself, identify with Him, partake of Him, follow Him.
Then, even amidst the doubts and temptations that beset you, God will have found you;
and you will be well on your way to knowing
and experiencing the way of life and truth.
Then you will be Jesus' disciples and the sons and daughters of the Father forever.
John 6:35-51; 7:37-39

Living or Dying?

So if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed.
John 8:36

Many of God's creatures don't know what life is all about.

They laugh and dance, indulge and spend,
and find some satisfaction in pursuing thrill, excitement, danger, popular acclaim,
and material security.

They follow their selfish instincts or yield to their craven desires.

They convince themselves that this is living,
when it is really the process of dying.

They are unsuspecting victims of bondage, enslaved
by their own self-centered concepts and convictions.

Jesus has come to set men and women free from this bondage.

He does not rid people of their instincts or eradicate their natural inclinations, so impregnated with self-concern.

He can, infilled by the Spirit who enabled Him to successfully confront temptation, grant to those who seek it the power to subdue their selfish desires and passions, and He can bless them with the kind of joy
that will make their lives whole and abundant.

Those who continue to seek for purpose and meaning along other corridors of this temporal existence may ultimately find the door to eternal joy and abundance closed shut.
They remain blind to the truth,
deaf to the word of God's love,
numb to the movings of His Spirit in and about them.
Their good works and fine intentions avail them nothing.
They have not sought for God.
They have never found Him.

John 8:34-38

Come to God's Party

And at the time for the banquet he sent his servant to say to those who had been invited, "Come; for all is now ready."—Luke 14:17

Only those who accept the invitation will enjoy the party.
There is no limit to the number who are invited to this ongoing event—
this experience of eternal joy that God has prepared.
Nor are there qualifications or standards that must be measured up to in order to attend.
But there is no room for procrastinators.

Most of the invited are apparently involved in parties of their own.

Or they are so busy about mundane matters that they have no time to embrace and celebrate the love and joy of God.

They make all sorts of excuses:

a family to rear, a paycheck to earn,
a prize to win, a goal to attain, a life to live—
even some religious exercise to perform.

God's party can wait until some more convenient time—
or after the other parties prove dull and unsatisfying.

God is indeed patient, but the opportunities to come to Him are not unlimited.

And there are others who will respond to His invitation;
these are the ones He will seek out and receive to Himself.

They shall feast at God's banquet table forever.

There is, however, one requirement that must be met.
Not only must those invited truly desire to come,
they must come as they are—with no strings attached.
It is not a costume ball.
It is a celebration, a recognition of who they are
and what they have become by the grace of God.
Those who come under the disguise of their personal merits will find little joy at God's party.
They will have little to celebrate for they are incapable of receiving what the Host so graciously offers.
And if they have not met Jesus Christ,
and accepted God's love through Him,
they will not feel welcome at the Father's party.

Matthew 22:1-13

Stop Running

And he arose and came to his father. But while he was yet at a distance, his father saw him and had compassion, and ran and embraced him and kissed him.—Luke 15:20

You are very important to God.
While His children are numbered in the millions,
none of them is of more value than you.
This is the greatness of His infinite love and grace.
This is the reason He continues to seek for you—to reach for you—that He may draw you into the circle of His redeeming love.

You may keep running if you so choose.
He will not force you to submit to His purposes
for your life.
But should you tire of running from Him,
you will find that He is not far away,
that He is waiting to receive you to Himself.

Jesus has come from the Father to show you
the way back to life and truth.
Listen to His words—follow after Him;
then you will know God's blessed will for your life.

Luke 15:11-24

For Those Who Are Religious

The Need to Be Religious

Think not that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets; I have come not to abolish them but to fulfill them.—Matthew 5:17

In your need to be religious,

to relate to some indefinable security beyond your world,
to discover some meaning for life and purpose for living,
some of you resurrect the ancient Law,
or a set of rules and regulations,
and make that the guiding star of your lives.

And then you manipulate it into serving yourselves
and your interests,
assuming that it equally and adequately serves
the needs and interests of others as well.

The Law that God gave to His chosen people was important for them and their times.

It serves well today in roughly defining priorities in people's lives and in giving some direction or order in human relationships.

It has been the basis for innumerable religions that people subscribe to and cling to in their search for God.

It does not, however,
effect a right relationship with God.

It does not reveal God's saving love nor the manner in which men and women are to respond to His love.

It becomes, in the lives of many people,
a substitute for God and His will and order for their lives.

It often destroys rather than redeems,
separates rather than unites,
divides rather than reconciles people to God.

It is not the Law by itself that does this,
but mankind's vain attempts to live by the Law and to assume that this effort keeps them in harmony with God.

Jesus has come to do for you what the Law cannot do,
to reveal the love of His Father,
to redeem you from the bondage of rules and regulations,
and to reconcile you to God.

You can know and experience God's love,
and learn how to love in response to God's love,
only through Jesus Christ.

Matthew 5:17-48

The Obstacles to True Faith

Not every one who says to Me, "Lord, Lord," shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father who is in heaven.—Matthew 7:21

God did reveal something of Himself and His love for the children of Israel through the giving of the Law.

His chosen people through whom He was ultimately to reveal Himself through Christ were fenced about, corralled by His statutes.

This Law became their religion—and those who made honest attempts to live by that Law considered themselves the objects of God's goodness and loving-kindness.

Those who ignored or disobeyed the Law became the objects of prophetic denunciations and the threat of damnation.

From that time until this,
laws and rules and regulations have become a religion
for masses of this world's inhabitants.

And now, in spite of God's revealed love through Christ, people continually attempt to pacify a holy and all-righteous God by way of self-imposed standards that allegedly please Him or religious ceremonies which pretend to honor Him.

They often become, these laws and standards,
the very thing that stands between people and their God.

Laws continue to be necessary in society
to guarantee some kind of order, to enforce justice, to keep sin-ridden human beings from destroying each other.

They are, however,
incapable of relating men and women to God.

Whereas the law of God does serve God and humankind in terms of revealing the brokenness, the emptiness, the insufficiency of the human spirit—
and thereby may prepare people for God's ultimate revelation through Jesus Christ—
it does not unite God's creatures to Himself.

This is what Christ has come to do—to reconcile you to the God of your creation, to proclaim and demonstrate His mercy and love,
to show you the way and grant you the power to embrace His forgiving love.

Mark 7:1-8, 14-23

The Standards of God

And He said to them, “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second is like it, you shall love your neighbor as yourself.”—Matthew 22:37-39

The law of God, which the ancient commandments attempted to explain and clarify, is summed up in God's requirement to love Him with your total being and to love your fellow persons—your brothers and sisters in the human family—in the manner that you accept and love yourselves. This is the standard of righteousness that God requires of His creatures, and this is the standard that Jesus has measured up to and fulfilled. No one can add to or subtract from God's requirement. If people could accept and live by this requirement, they would truly be the children of God.

But they cannot—no matter how many rules and regulations or laws and statutes they accumulate in their sincere but futile attempts to please the heart of God.

And all the pious activities and religious experiences in the world cannot cover up this incapability.

It is because men and women are born into the world with a nature that has been permeated and tainted with self-will and sin that they need a new birth—new hearts—lives set free from sin's enslavement and focused upon God's gracious will and design for His creatures.

Jesus has come to make that possible—to witness as to what His Father requires, to demonstrate what He desires, and to release you from sin's bondage that you may aspire to and grow toward and abide within God's righteous will for your lives.

Jesus can restore you to a right relationship with God.

He has accomplished what is necessary to effect that relationship.

You need only, by faith, to accept what He has done on your behalf, to identify with Him and His purposes for your lives, and to follow Him as His disciples.

Then you, also, will learn how to love God with your total beings, and your fellow persons as you love yourselves.

Matthew 22:34-40

Trying to Be Religious

Beware of practicing your piety before men in order to be seen by them; for then you will have no reward from your Father who is in heaven.—Matthew 6:1

You have tried to be religious.

You say that you believe in God and you demonstrate that
by your support of religious institutions.

You make regular visits to your particular shrine.

You pray at appropriate times and dutifully repeat your confessions.

But God's standards require you to make Him the focal point of your life, to love Him with all your heart and mind and being.

You insist that you respect your fellow persons and that you do nothing to hurt them.

God requires you to love your neighbors—
to regard them as your very sisters and brothers—to share with them your gifts and even your very life.

The leaders of God's people during Christ's earthly ministry also tried to be religious;
and they, indeed, assumed they were religious.

Jesus tried to show them that it was their very religion—their assumption that their adherence to rituals and ceremonies and prefabricated rules and laws would make God well-disposed towards them—
that stood between them and their Creator.

They refused to accept Christ as God-revealed and indicted and crucified Him as a traitor because He proclaimed a loving God who required and provided a righteousness that was far superior to the burdensome religion they embraced and imposed upon the people.

Your very religion may stand between you and God—
if, that is, it is not a loving and obedient response to God's forgiving and saving love
as revealed through Jesus Christ.

Matthew 6:1-8

Religion You Wear Like a Coat

What comes out of a man is what defiles a man. For from within, out of the heart of men, come evil thoughts, fornication, theft, murder, adultery, coveting, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, foolishness.

Mark 7:20-22

Lip-worship is as common in your day as it was when Jesus visited this world.
People not only respect the traditions of the past—
as they ought to do—
but they inordinately honor them and desperately clutch at them like a drowning man latching on to floating debris.

They wear their religion—put on their religion—
the way a person might put on a coat.

As the prophets persistently enunciated,
this is abominable to God.

Hymn-singing, the making of prayers,
the confessing of creeds,
the symbols and rituals and religious exercises
that are an important part of your churches, are valid and desirable—
and they are pleasing to God.

But He looks deeper into the heart of man and woman, into his or her real desires and motivations,
into the honest beliefs and intents
of His human creatures.

He looks for faith.

The Spirit of God breaks through the visible and the apparent, the words people say,
the motions they go through,
and the rituals they perform;
He sees and knows what is in the hearts of His children.

If hatred is there,
recognized but unconfessed sin there,
disobedience or faithlessness there,
the Spirit of God knows
and the heart of God is displeased.

The hymns of praise, the verbal confessions and prayers,
and the religious ceremonies enacted do nothing for those people who wear their religion like a coat.

People may impress their naive and undiscerning friends with their religious activity,

but God looks into the hearts of His creatures—
and He knows what goes on there.

It is not what a person wears that makes that person acceptable to God;
it is what he or she truly believes—what he or she is really committed to—that determines the source and object and quality of faith.

Mark 7:6-23

Playing Games with God

Then said Jesus to His disciples, “The scribes and the Pharisees sit on Moses’ seat; so practice and observe whatever they tell you, but not what they do; for they preach, but do not practice.”—Matthew 23:1-3

One needs to be wary of those people who make strenuous efforts to appear religious.
They may be playing games with God—and man.
If their words and deeds are the outpouring and overflowing of love for God and humankind, and if they are accompanied by humility
and a genuine concern for humanity, by the willingness to be servants to rather than masters over their fellow beings, then the Spirit of God is working within and through them.

If their proclamations are ostentatious and self-serving,
if they are self-centered, bigoted, prejudicial, success-oriented,
if they are more concerned about their own image
and are utilizing their God-given gifts for self-glory, they may be using God or the God-language
to push their own projects
and accomplish their own objectives.

Whereas your discernment in respect to these people may be faulty—and this is dangerous—you need to be aware lest you be sucked into their religious game-playing and become less than authentic in your search for truth.

The person who is deeply committed to God and His purposes,
who accepts his or her own humanity,
its fallibility and failures,
who responds to God's forgiving love
and indwelling Spirit,
and recognizes the injunction and call
to be a loving servant,
who emulates Jesus Christ
in His loving and sacrificial servanthood, that person is an authentic Christian who truly is assigned to building God's kingdom in the world today.

Matthew 23:1-12

Label and Libel

Now you Pharisees cleanse the outside of the cup and of the dish, but inside you are full of extortion and wickedness.—Luke 11:39

A person's religious label may be honored by many in your society.

It makes no impression whatsoever
upon the heavenly Father.

It is often a cover-up for selfish and sometimes illegal activities.

And, as with the Pharisees of Jesus' day,
it blinds its victims to life and truth and makes them the agents of darkness rather than the servants of light.

They unwittingly, unknowingly, become the very enemies of God,
roadblocks to the advancement of His kingdom.

There are those who use the name of Christ and sing His praises at their weekly worship services and dedicate the other six days of the week to their own self-centered pursuits.

They verbally confess Christ as the Savior of the world but try to use Him as their own private protector and dispenser of good things.

They acknowledge His love for themselves but show little concern for anyone beyond their own family or circle of friends.

They assume they are meant to travel first-class—with God's blessing—
while the rest of the world is expected to be content with steerage.

They actually believe that their comfort and well-being are the consequences of their religious faith.

They may not admit it,
but they act as if they are of more value to God,
more favored by Him,
than are those masses who are still living in darkness and struggling desperately for the very necessities of existence.

They pay for their right to believe this with large contributions toward the building of beautiful shrines where they may occasionally be inspired and solaced in the religion of their choice.

What is so very sad is that some of these people
sincerely believe that they are the children of God.
They may be no closer to God than those very religious but blindly ignorant and faithless Pharisees of Christ's day.

Luke 11:37-52

Blind Leading the Blind

You blind Pharisee! First cleanse inside of the cup and of the plate, that the outside also may be clean.

Matthew 23:26

Whereas most religious leaders today are faithful and true, some may be no closer to the kingdom of God
than were the leaders of the people Jesus ministered to when He sojourned on this planet.

Their behavior may differ,
but the net result is often the same—people are blindly guided down paths that do not lead to God.

The religious leaders of Christ's day were dictatorial and oppressive.

There are a few leaders today who are out to entertain,
to conduct ego-fulfilling popularity contests,
or they concentrate primarily on building buildings,
raising budgets, and recruiting membership.

They assume that success is measured by statistics.
They may be more concerned about their own names and reputations than they are about God and His purposes.

Their ministry tends to be a personal ego-trip,
and they are more into self-gratification and glory
than they are for self-denial and cross-bearing.

They shun provocative issues, regard social needs as nonspiritual and perpetuate an impractical pietism that keeps the emotions high but fails to meet the real needs of God's children.

Or, on the other hand, they may be more concerned about straightening out this world than they are about the spiritual vacuum
in the hearts of their constituents.
The point is that some of them are not proclaiming the Gospel as Jesus came to proclaim and demonstrate it.
They subtract from it or add to it, and the result is a pathetic mishmash that becomes a stumbling-block for those who are seeking God.

Be aware of the leaders you follow.
If they do not introduce you to a forgiving God
as revealed through Jesus Christ—
and to discipleship and servanthood as exemplified by Him—they may be leading you astray.

Matthew 23:13-28

The Law Fulfilled

Every one who comes to Me and hears My words and does them, I will show you what he is like: he is like a man building a house, who dug deep, and laid the foundation upon rock; and when a flood arose, the stream broke against that house, and could not shake it, because it had been well built.—Luke 6:47-48

The law of God still stands.

It is summed up in the requirement to “love your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength,” and “you shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

Not capable of measuring up to this high standard, religious people often interpret it in terms of what they don’t do— they don’t worship other gods and they don’t kill or steal or commit adultery or bear false witness.

Jesus did not come to eradicate that law.

He came to fulfill it, to exemplify it, to translate it into terms of loving relationships with God and within the human family.

It involved a cross for Him; it involves a cross for those who follow Him.

This is something that many religions cannot comprehend and many religious people will never accept.

Some of them will consent to the necessity of Christ’s sacrifice as a guarantee for their eternal welfare; they are not as likely to take seriously His injunction to embrace the cross of self-denial and sacrifice on behalf of their sisters and brothers in the human family. They simply have not understood or accepted the meaning and purpose of God's kingdom as revealed through Christ. It is possible that they may never be a part of that kingdom.

Not all who are religious will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only those who do the will of God— who do what Jesus commanded them to do, for His words and His deeds are God's will revealed.

If a person's faith in God does not result in obedience to His will as proclaimed and demonstrated through Jesus Christ, it is not the true religion.

Matthew 7:21-23; 22:34-40

Religious or Christian?

If I then, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that you also should do as I have done to you.—John 13:14-15

Of course you are religious.
You are respectable and responsible citizens.
You love your church and conscientiously measure up to its membership standards.

You care about those close to you and even show some concern for your neighbors.
Did not the Pharisees in Christ's day do the same?

God demands far more from you.
He insists on the kind of faith that begins with confession and proceeds to cross-bearing.
Not only are you to claim His loving forgiveness through Jesus Christ; you are to be like Him.

You are, as Christ has done,
to accept your fellow beings where they are in order to patiently and lovingly lead them to where God wants them to be.

You are to stoop to the feet-washing level of your neighbor's need in order to lift him or her to the heights of God's loving acceptance.

It means your involvement with the excruciating sufferings,
the pains and problems, conflicts and consternations,
failures and defeats of your fellow beings,
that you bear one another's burdens and share one another's sorrows.

It means that you put your lives on the line in loving and sacrificial action to bring justice and dignity and opportunity and validity to every human being within your reach or circle of influence.

It begins with the cross,
the cross Jesus bore on your behalf;
it resolves in your self-denial and cross-bearing on behalf of others.

Of course you are religious;
but do you really want to be followers of Jesus Christ?

John 13:12-17

For Those Who Live for the Things of This World

The Tyranny of Things

Therefore do not be anxious, saying, “What shall we eat?” or “What shall we drink?” or “What shall we wear?” For the Gentiles seek all these things; and your heavenly Father knows that you need them all.—Matthew 6:31-32

Some of those who are rich in the things of this world assume they have already found the kingdom of God. Their lives are so glutted with the goodies and gadgets of this temporal existence that there simply is no room for God as Christ has revealed Him.

They have seen and they have conquered.
They not only have everything they want,
but they have the power that their riches give them—
power to move people about them,
to induce or force people to serve them.

They have inundated their every physical sense and faculty with the sounds and sights, the odors and tastes, the thrills and ecstasies, that this world offers.

And, at least until health fails and death threatens,
they have little concern for their spiritual needs and even less concern for the multitudes about them that they may be oppressing and depriving in their avaricious clutch upon the things of this world.

When their final hour upon this planet does draw near,
and they begin to realize that they must part with their great accumulations of this world's bounties, some of them may become aware of how poverty-stricken they are.

Then it may be too late.
They who have never reached for God
may have stifled forever their spiritual hungers, and they cannot sense or respond to God's reaching out for them.

God loves these people; He is no respecter of persons.
Nothing is impossible for Him,
and no one is unreachable—except those who refuse to hear His Word and to receive the rich gifts He grants.

Matthew 6:24-34

Middle-Class Religion

And Jesus said to his disciples, “Truly, I say to you, it will be hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven.”
Matthew 19:23

There are some middle-class people within society who assume they are the kingdom of God.
They have been born into or become a part of a culture they believe is God's best for humankind and is God's gracious provision for those who honor Him.
They are comparably rich in view of this world's hungry masses that eke out their existence—meal by meal.

Religion is important to them—most of them—
and has at least some place in their lives.

Rather than allowing God to use them, however, they seek to use God and religion to maintain or to raise their standard of living, to assure them of temporal and eternal security or grant them peace of mind.

Whereas they may not be as distant from God's kingdom
as many of those who are very rich, they, also, are often hooked on the things of this world and find Jesus' injunctions to self-denial and cross-carrying upsetting and distasteful.

It is very difficult for them to give priority to God's purposes, to share the tangible securities they worked so hard for
with those who have very little of this world's goods.

Their gospel of materialism takes precedence over Christ's Gospel of redeeming love and does not often extend to loving servanthood on behalf of their fellow persons.

It is not impossible for such people to enter the kingdom of God, but it will be very difficult.
While many of them may verbally and emotionally respond to God's saving grace, a much smaller number of them are willing to acknowledge the Father's ownership of the things they possess and their assignment to be God's stewards of the gifts He has placed in their hands.

Matthew 19:23-26

Religion Under Judgment

If then you have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will entrust to you the true riches?

Luke 16:11

Many citizens of this society
may be credited for the advancement and progress of what is called the Christian religion.
They have built the institutions and financed the programs that have been responsible for the spread of the Gospel around the globe.
Yet even they do not escape the judgment of the Father.
Their vision has often been short-sighted,
their efforts short-circuited,
by their adoption of Christ's teachings and promises and their utilization of His gifts for their own personal benefit even at the expense of others with whom they were expected to share those teachings and gifts.
They sing God's praises—many of them—
but they have not committed themselves to His purposes.
They have laid claim to their material security and prosperity in Jesus' name and have allowed their religious institutions to become private clubs for their own comfort and consolation.
They have created snug harbors to protect themselves from the storms of life that rage throughout the world.
They attempt to protect their way of life irrespective of the suffering and injustice which this may entail.

God has not given up on them.
They struggle with temptation and risk damnation because they focus upon temporal society and the acquisition of this world's material goods.
They are in constant danger of losing their souls.
There are, however, prophets in their midst—men and women who have learned to seek first God's kingdom and to use their gifts for His purposes—
who are challenging the faithful to sacrificial service in Christ's name.
The church people of this generation should listen to them.
They cannot be the beloved children of God without being the servants and disciples of Jesus Christ.

Luke 16:10-15

Gifts That God Grants

But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things shall be yours as well.—Matthew 6:33

You should not have to be enticed into the kingdom of God
by a recital of the great rewards that await those who are faithful.

The love of the Father should be enough—His grace and forgiveness and His guarantee of life everlasting.

But the tantalizing tidbits,
the shiny tinsel of this world,
often succeed in blinding you to eternal values.

Many act as if this is all that life is—whatever they can acquire and indulge in within the few years that they reside upon this planet.

Has not Christ's resurrection proven to you that what you experience here,
the blessings God grants you here,
are but a foretaste of that eternal, unimaginable abundance that is promised by the heavenly Father?

There are joys and pleasures awaiting the children of God that these people who feast perpetually upon the pleasures of this world will never know.

The good and beautiful things of this world—
books and music, arts and learning, sunsets and starlight, flowers and trees, oceans and mountains, the lesser creatures of God that fill the skies and the forests—
they, also, are from the hand of the Father.

These things are to be received as gifts of God;
they are to be enjoyed and appreciated and shared with others.

They must not, however, stand between you and God's will for your lives.

These things,
along with the inventions of human minds and hands,
are capable of smothering the inner spirit that reaches for the divine Spirit.

The kingdom of God, along with all of its riches, awaits those who will come to Christ.

You may enter that kingdom and receive its riches
by accepting and following Him as your Savior and Lord.

Matthew 6:31-34

Those Treasures That Will Not Fail

Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust consume and where thieves break in and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal.—Matthew 6:19-20

You know what happens to the things of this world that comfort, entertain, and make you feel secure.
They wear out, rust out, and fail to please you when problems arise that they cannot solve.
Your banks fail; your precious trinkets are stolen;
your natural resources are drying up;
and the few things you manage to hold on to
are incapable of ending your loneliness or filling your emptiness.
It is because your spirit was created for better things—
for those joys and satisfactions that only God can grant.
They are the imperishable gifts that cannot wear out or be taken from you.

The birds that fly, the fish that swim,
the animals that run and reproduce, hunt and kill,
eat and sleep—
they are content with their environment upon this earth because they were not given an inner spirit that reaches incessantly for union with the Creator-Father.

You were created in the image of God,
to be His child, to find objective and meaning in loving and serving Him.

When your spirit finds total contentment with anything less than this, then it must be a dying spirit,
a spirit asphyxiated by the accumulated and selfishly appropriated things of this world.

You cannot focus your life and energies upon the wealth of this world and still expect to know and ultimately experience the eternally abundant wealth of God's kingdom.

You are made to worship God—not the things He created, which are His temporal gifts to you.

It is when you worship and serve Him that you begin to accumulate eternal treasures that shall never be taken away from you.

Matthew 6:19-21

The Final Accounting

But God said to him, “Fool! This night your soul is required of you; and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?”—Luke 12:20

It seems generally accepted in this world that success, or life's worth,
is to be measured by the size of a person's bank account
or the amount of property that person owns.
This is not true in the kingdom Jesus represents—the kingdom He brought into this world and in which He invites you to participate.
The person who gathers solely for himself or herself in this world will never know the riches of the kingdom of God.
While possessions accumulate,
the spirit remains poverty-stricken.
There simply is no room in a person's heart for God
when it is cluttered up or enslaved
by the tyrannical clutch of temporal things.

Whether you have to build more barns to store your surplus grain or hire more brokers to handle your investments,
there is nothing that can forestall that day when all of your accumulated wealth will become like dry rot.
In that last hour,

when you would exchange all your worldly possessions
for an additional moment or two of life, the final accounting will reveal a barren soul
that is not ready to meet its Creator, an emptiness that nothing can fill,
a loneliness and a hunger that nothing will satiate.

Those who make their primary investments in this life and the things that accompany it will have nothing stored up for eternity—
only eternal poverty and darkness.

Those who receive Christ's gift of life and invest their years upon this world in carrying out the Father's purposes and in sharing their lives and possessions with the human family about them will discover that their final hour of this existence is but a prelude to the abundant joys of life eternal.

Luke 12:16-21

Accumulators or Stewards?

And I tell you, make friends for yourselves by means of unrighteous mammon, so that when it fails they may receive you into the eternal habitations.—Luke 16:9

Christ, in one of His parables, relates how some people who are not of His kingdom

invest their wealth in ways that serve to secure their existence upon this world.

They see to it that a portion of their material riches is used for the welfare of others.

They are wiser than many of those who claim to follow Jesus.
Christ does not condone some of their motives—

which may be selfish—
but there are times when their actions are more humane than the actions of many who confess His name.

Some of these people even discover that serving their fellow beings brings more satisfaction than accumulating possessions for themselves.

One does not enter God's kingdom by generously sharing his or her gifts with others—though a person may thereby benefit by the love and devotion of those whom he or she serves.

No one can come to the Father except through Christ.

However, all who come unto Him and become a part of His kingdom will accept their calling as stewards of God's great gifts and utilize them to bring light and joy into the lives of God's creatures about them.

They will find their greatest joy in serving others,
because in serving them they are truly serving God.

What you have acquired and accumulated is not yours;
all the good things that have come your way
have come from the hand of the Father.

While they are given to enrich your life here upon earth,
they are also granted for the purpose of enriching and blessing the lives of others.

When, however, you make God's gifts the objects of your loyalty and devotion,
they take His place in your life and become a curse rather than a blessing and may render you ineligible for that life and kingdom which He has prepared for you.

In that event, you are,
in the midst of your grand accumulations,
truly and eternally poverty-stricken.

Luke 16:1-9

For Those Who Are the Children of God

You Are His Children Now

Pray then like this: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name . . . —Matthew 6:9

You, dear friends, are the children of God.

There is no language or human medium that can communicate the beauty and significance of that blessed relationship.

It is altogether beyond the comprehension of earthbound creatures.

Yet it is this that God makes possible for you through Jesus Christ.

It means that you need no priest to stand between you and God.

Nor do you need sacrificial altars upon which to offer your gifts to Him or stately temples in which to worship Him.

As a little child boldly approaches his father in love and need, so God is your Father, and you may confidently come to Him,
    worshipfully, penitentially, joyfully,
    daring to air your doubts, your fears,
    your problems and needs,
    knowing that He hears,
    that He rejoices in the faith of His children,
    and that He responds to their urgent requests.

You must, however, be open to God and your fellow beings.
As you claim His divine forgiveness,

so you are to relate in forgiving love
to those about you.

As you relate your needs to Him,
you must submit to His will for you.

As you seek His gifts, you are to share such gifts with your brothers and sisters.

As you look to Him for guidance, you are expected to walk in the paths He lays out for you.

When you worship or pray or sing His praises, be aware that this is done to relate to God—
not to impress your peers.

Your Father knows your needs far better than you do;
yet He desires that you communicate with Him,
rely on Him, trust Him, abide in Him.

He rejoices in the love of His children;
He urges you as His children to continually regard Him
as your loving Father.

Matthew 5:2-12; 6:1-18

Children and Servants

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16

Because you are the beloved children of God,
you are the salt of the earth and the light of the world.

You are His representatives,
His vessels, His instruments,
the servants of His kingdom on your planet.
Since Jesus absented Himself from your midst, you, infilled with His Spirit,
are chosen and instructed to carry on His purposes
among the peoples of the world.
You are to be like salt amidst the world's corruption, lights within its darkness.
It isn't enough to display your piety
in religious exercises;
you are called upon to demonstrate and manifest God's love for the unlovely and unloved beings that cross your path.

As you were introduced to your Father's love through Jesus Christ and through those who followed Him, so your fellow beings are to see something of the Father's love through you.

You may be the only means that God has
of touching people around you with His love,
of relating to them His Word,
of enabling them to discover His saving grace.

It is not enough to pray for those people who do not know Christ as their Savior and God as their Father.

You must be willing to be the instruments through which God can reach the lost and wandering sinners around you.

Then you may pray in confidence for the strength and wisdom and divine grace to be salt and light, to love as He loves, to reach out to them as He reaches out to you.

You are, by God's salvation,

by His appointment and empowerment,
the salt and the light,
the life-giving channel or transmitter
of God's grace and power to the world.
The blessing of God the Father is upon those who are faithful to their calling.

Matthew 5:13-16

God Cares About You

Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you shall eat or what you shall drink, not about your body, what you shall put on.—Matthew 6:25b

God the Father does care about you.
Thus you need not be overconcerned about your physical needs.
The circumstances about you or the calamities that befall your world may at times press you into the dark corners of depression and deprivation.
But you are the sons and daughters of a new kingdom.
You are fed and sustained by the Spirit of your Father within you.
Your sufferings will not be greater than He will enable you to endure.
Jesus knows, for He has gone before you,

and even when His human body was afflicted with suffering and His soul oppressed,
His Father sent His invisible servants to impart to Him
the strength to continue in His eternal purposes and the courage to carry out His objectives.

As there was for Christ, so there is for you,
the joy of knowing that you are in the center of His blessed will and the objects of His everlasting love.

There are those hours in which human pain sharpens your focus upon those things that are really important for your lives.

There are those times when the poverty of your lives may be due to your failure to communicate your needs to your Father and to look to Him for the answers to your problems.
The Father of Jesus, your great God, never sleeps.
He is aware of your deepest desires.
He wants to fulfill them in the manner and to the extent that His purposes will be accomplished in and through you,
so that your joy will be complete.

Matthew 6:25-34

Walk with God

Enter by the narrow gate; for the gate is wide and the way is easy that leads to destruction, and those who enter by it are many. For the gate is narrow and the way is hard that leads to life, and those who find it are few.

Matthew 7:13-14

The path that you, the child of God, are to walk upon will at times seem to be very narrow and difficult. It will lead you into circumstances and relationships that will test your mettle and refine your spirit. There will be hot desert sands and soaring mountains, hills and valleys, sun and clouds, thorns and flowers. There will be vicious storms that frighten and obstruct, and green oases that nourish and comfort. It should not surprise you that many of your friends, even some of your loved ones, will not accompany you. They are more readily attracted by the glittering, well-traveled freeways that beckon to adventure and sensual thrills. The path you traverse leads to God and His will for your life. The roads that are glutted with bumper-to-bumper traffic lead only to the fast-fleeting pleasures and satisfactions of this world. Beware of those religious charlatans that herald the walk of a Christian as an easy and perpetually happy experience.

If you follow them, you will go astray.
Note well the issue of their lives, their values and motives,
and the long-range consequences of their kind of leadership.
They may talk the talk that resembles some of the things Christ said and did in this world, but they do not walk the walk He exemplified.
It is those people who follow Jesus Christ, who hear His words and receive His life and do what He says,
who will enter into abundant living and life everlasting.
Those who travel by some other route,
regardless of their confessions and proclamations, will not weather the fierce storms of this life nor experience the joy of abiding within the perfect will of God.

Walk upon Christ's paths and live by His words and deeds for your life—for they are, indeed, the will of God for you.

Matthew 7:13-14

Interpersonal Relationships

Judge not, that you be not judged. For with the judgment you pronounce you will be judged, and the measure you give will be the measure you get.—Matthew 7:1-2

It is when you walk within God's will for your lives that you truly become, as members of God's family,
the brothers and sisters of Jesus Christ.

Though the path is often difficult even as it is joyous, you need not be afraid because He has gone before you;
and He, through His Spirit and the Spirit of His Father, walks with you.

Whereas you must be discerningly aware of the words and actions of those who seek to lead you on paths not of God's choosing, you must not become judgmental of those with whom you disagree or who may appear to take different routes than the course to which Christ has called you.

Judgment is in the hands of God alone.

Even God's invisible servants, His very angels, are not qualified to pass judgment upon His creatures.

If you assume that by your redemption and your reconciliation to God's family you are more important to God than His other creatures within the human family, regardless of their race, religion, or economic status,
you will be tripped up by your own pride and become a stumbling block to others about you.

The temptations that will plague you are numberless.
You not only have Christ's sympathy, but His concern, and His promise that the Father will grant you
the grace to withstand them.

Even when you foolishly yield to their power and persuasiveness, the forgiving grace of God is sufficient to restore you to His way and will for your lives once again.

There remain numerous anti-God taints and tendencies within your human natures.

Unless they are recognized and prayerfully placed under the control of God's Spirit, they are capable of leading you astray.

Nevertheless, be not afraid,
for the God who redeemed you will keep you forever and will allow nothing to extract you from His loving hands.

Matthew 7:1-14

Forgive and Be Forgiven

So also My heavenly Father will do to every one of you, if you do not forgive your brother from your heart.

Matthew 18:35

The child of God is not exempt from the problems and difficulties that afflict the human family.
There are mountains to climb and burdens to carry.
But never need he or she carry the devastating burden of sin.
Christ's sacrifice was sufficient;
man's guilt was exonerated.
The forgiving grace of a loving God has been appropriated.
Thus you have been forgiven forever
from all that you have renounced and put behind you.
You have been set free from sin's bondage and consequences and can walk and leap and run as God's joyous children.

It is necessary, however,
that the forgiven person become a forgiving person.

No matter how determined you are to walk with God,
that blessed relationship cannot endure
if you harbor or portray an unforgiving attitude toward a brother or sister.

Whereas such an attitude may be harmful for the person in question,
its continued presence will be destructive for you,
far more destructive than the wrongful acts committed by that person toward you.

Should you be tempted to consider that person
as unworthy of your forgiveness, consider, as well, how undeserving you are of God's forgiveness of the enmity and rebelliousness
you have often manifested toward Him.

The human family is marked with flaws and faults.
These are often visible in interpersonal relationships.
Like jealous siblings you find occasion to gnash at one another, to hurt or be hurt by one another.
Reflecting on the Father's love for each of you,
those spiteful and ungracious incidents ought to become the opportunity to portray your Father's love for one another and to reunite around His blessed purposes once more.

Matthew 18:21-35

Serve God Where You Are

The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into His harvest.—Luke 10:2

The essential assignment of God's children is to love their fellow beings and to demonstrate that love and concern in their daily lives.

Whereas some of you may be compelled to leave your family and homeland
in order to carry out God's global purposes, most of you will find your arena of service
on your own street or in your own neighborhood.

The elderly lady next door,
a sick child down your block,
an oppressed minority community in your city,
the victims of injustice, poverty, crime, and violence—
these may well be the people you are to serve,
the situations in which you are to witness.

It is not enough to proclaim God's presence;
you are to be that presence.

He may not be able to touch those people except through you.

Do not measure your success by the visible response or results that may or may not be the consequence of your ministry.

You know well that Jesus' ministry among the people He physically related to in this world could hardly be statistically ascertained.

Our Father in heaven will keep accurate records.
His concern for you is not that you be successful,
but that you be faithful.
Keep the lines of communication open between you and God.
Allow Him through His Spirit within you to accomplish His purposes through you.
As your feet run His errands and your hands perform His deeds of love
among your fellow beings,
may your tongue be ready to express the joy of God's life and Word that is in you.
This is your assignment
as God's children and servants in your broken world.

Luke 10:1-9

You Pray—God Responds

And I tell you, Ask, and it will be given you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For every one who asks receives, and he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks it will be opened.—Luke 11:9-10

If you, in spite of your inherent selfishness, are able and willing to give good things
to your children,
how can you doubt God's ability and willingness to impart to you the good things that you need to live joyful and fruitful lives?

Even strangers who owe you nothing will,
if you are in some serious predicament,
reach out to help you in your need.

How much more shall your heavenly Father, who loves you and watches over you,
make available to you the necessities of life and the grace you need to walk and serve within His will for you!

There are times when He waits for you to demonstrate your dependence upon Him by expressing those needs in verbal prayer.

In such prayer you are to worship
your loving, ever-reigning, and righteous God,
to pledge your allegiance to Him,
to acknowledge your sinfulness and receive His forgiveness, to dedicate yourselves to His eternal will,
and then to trust that He hears and will respond in accordance with what is best for you.

Yet even before He hears your words, He knows your needs.
True prayer is really a day-by-day relationship of love and trust in the God who created you and reconciled you to Himself.

This relationship will, at times,
be articulated in verbal praise.

It should always be demonstrated in quiet and joyous confidence—the confidence that you are loved and will be sustained and guided as you continue to follow and serve your God who reveals His love and will through the words and deeds of Jesus Christ.

Luke 11:5-13

You Are Important

For every one who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted.—Luke 14:11

You have been made the children of God, citizens of His kingdom, brothers and sisters, servants and disciples forever.

You are God's ministers to His human creatures around you.
It is this that truly gives you significance and validity—each one of you.

You need not, as do the cultists and nonreligious therapy groups about you, continue to struggle for self-realization and identity,
for some sense of meaning and purpose for your lives.

You have all this—and much more.

Truly, you are the sons and daughters of God.

This must not, as it appears to with so many nonreligious movements, result in self-exaltation.

God is God; Jesus is God's Son, your Savior and Lord.

As with Christ, so with you—your allegiance is to,
your dependence is upon, the Father in heaven.

You were created in His image,
and even before your creation Christ was with God.

It is your redemption from sin and your reconciliation to your Creator and Lord that established forever your identity and personhood.

It is for this reason that you can afford to keep a low profile among your peers.
You do not have to be king-of-the-hill,
to be more prestigious or recognized than your fellow beings.
Your validity is not determined by your fellow persons;
it is established by God Himself.
While some of God's children do receive worldly acclaim and honor, others serve as well or better, as Jesus did,
by suffering and dying on some ignominious cross.
Love deeply and walk humbly, whatever the cost,
and in due time you will be exalted by your Father in heaven.

Luke 14:7-11

Humble Yourself—Glorify God

Nevertheless do not rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you; but rejoice that your names are written in heaven.—Luke 10:20

Self-exaltation must give way to God-glorification.
You may be allowed to witness the power of God's Spirit through you in your relationship to your fellow beings.
Someone may be healed because of your prayers.

Others were found and restored to Christ and to God because of your faithful witness.

Your request for God's intervention in some crisis was fulfilled.

You successfully resisted some persistent temptation and thereby confounded the forces of evil that plagued your soul.

It is amazing how many of God's children actually credit themselves for some of those things that happen to them or through them—
and they assume that because of them they rightfully deserve the honor and respect of others.

Jesus wants you to be very cautious about this.
Give God the glory,

for from Him comes the grace and power
that touches people's lives through you.

He is the source of that eternal wisdom that enables you to discern and comprehend certain mysteries that even the most powerful and intelligent of this world's human creatures cannot perceive.

The great prophets of history were blind to the things you have seen and deaf to the things you have heard—yet even they had much to contribute to the understanding you have today.

Above all, you have Christ's witness in word and deed—
the cross, the resurrection, the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Jesus was God-incarnate in your midst—God revealed.

You have found God only because He came to you through Jesus Christ.

So rejoice! Sing loud His praises!

And do this because He adopted you as His children—and because He empowers and works through you as His ministers.

Luke 10:17-22

You and Your Talents

*I tell you, that to every one who has will more be given;
but from him who has not, even what he has will be taken away.—Luke 19:26*

- As God's children and His ministers and servants
in a rebellious and disjointed world, you are the recipients of God-imparted gifts to be used toward the accomplishment of His purposes in your world.
- It is true that some of you appear to have more than others, but every one of you
is of equal importance to God and has been entrusted with talents to be used to glorify and serve Him.
- The value or significance of these gifts is not to be determined by the accolades of your peers, but the manner in which they are accepted and utilized for the glory of God.
- The frightful thing is that even some of God's children use them for self-service and self-gratification and stagnate their lives by neglecting to invest them in the needs of their fellow beings.

What is worse is that they thereby grieve their loving God and become obstacles to the advancement of His kingdom.

These talents are many and varied.
Not all of them are acknowledged or honored by one's peers.
The most profound ones, however,
    may be the most invisible—
    the gifts, for instance, of love, faith, patience, understanding, sensitivity, courage, and the like.
They are all given because they are all needed for the advancement of God's objectives.
You are, by the enlightenment and empowerment of God's Spirit, to discern and acknowledge and stir up the talents that have been committed to you.
Then you are to utilize them,
    be they the abilities to make music or make money,
    to preach or write or teach or paint pictures or solve problems or whatever, to serve the needs of those who may lack such abilities and, ultimately, to extend God's kingdom throughout your world.

Glorify God with your lives and talents!

Luke 19:11-27

God's Children Are Fruit Bearers

By this My Father is glorified, that you bear much fruit, and so prove to be My disciples.—John 15:8

It is expected of God's children that their lives upon this world be fruitful.

God reveals His beauty and power and goodness
in the creatures that serve you, the trees that shade, the flowers that delight, the fruits and vegetables and growing things that feed you.

His eternal love and grace for humankind is manifested by Christ, who came to you in and through the witness of your fellow beings about you.

He has made Himself dependent upon you,
His redeemed sons and daughters,
to extend His kingdom in your midst.

Thus it is imperative that you be fruit bearers, that you be the channels and instruments
of God in your world.

This is the way Jesus revealed Himself to you—through those who by their lives and their witness communicated His teachings and activities to you.

Now you are to continue within God's great purposes and bear the fruit of His redeeming love to others who cross your path.

This does not require genius or some spectacular talents;
nor does it require anxious or worrisome effort.

It is the Spirit of God who works out His purposes
in and through you.
You need only to yield to and trust confidently in God and His will for your lives.
Fruit bearing is the result of a healthy relationship between the branch and the trunk of a fruit-bearing tree.
Service that is productive and contributive ought to be the normal and spontaneous consequence of a love-faith relationship to God through Jesus Christ.

You who are the children of God,
be aware of your God-given grace and responsibility to be fruit bearers in your community and world—to consistently and perpetually allow God to work out His purposes in and through you.
It is thereby, even in the midst of suffering, that you will bear fruit
and will find true joy and fulfillment.

John 15:1-11

For Those Who Doubt and Fear

He Has Not Forsaken You

Fear not, therefore; you are of more value than many sparrows. So every one who acknowledges Me before men, I also will acknowledge before My Father who is in heaven . . . .—Matthew 10:31-32

Jesus knows the world is fearful and oppressive.
He has been immersed in its darkness,
confronted by its enemies,
and suffered under its persecutions.
The forces of evil that possess and use
so many of the inhabitants of this planet are seeking mercilessly to disrupt your lives—
even to destroy your souls.
They never rest, those evil powers,
nor do the conflicts that they perpetrate upon you.

Neither does the Father rest;
nor is He unaware of the problems that afflict you.
He is ever awake and fully cognizant of your fears and frustrations.
He knows and He loves every one of His creatures.

If He knows when a sparrow flutters to the ground with a broken wing, or when a young doe is attacked and devoured by a beast of the forest, surely He knows you, your trials and troubles;
He is lovingly concerned about you.
Whereas He may not deliver you from your disjointed world until that day when He takes you to Himself, He will reach out to steady you, to comfort you,

even in the midst of your fears and doubts.

You will be afraid at times,
and doubts will cloud your minds,
for you are like lambs at the mercy of hungry beasts;
and you cannot always feel the presence of the Lord.
You may wonder, as Jesus did during those hours on the cross,
if God has forsaken you.
Jesus gives the assurance that God has not,
that He is never far off,
that He will, in His own good time, deliver you from the darkness that confounds you or the enemies that seek to do you harm.

Matthew 10:16-33

You Need Not Be Afraid

When they deliver you up, do not be anxious how you are to speak or what you are to say; for what you are to say will be given to you in that hour.—Matthew 10:19

Whereas it is to be expected that you fear those who can maim or destroy your body, even those who can force you to give up
your precious possessions,
Christ enjoins you not to be afraid.

You must remember that you belong to a new kingdom,
an eternal kingdom, a kingdom not of this world.

Your physical being,
the material gifts that come from God's hand,
they are yours to enjoy,
but they may not be yours to hold on to
or to defend at all costs.

You can well afford to risk these things—
even your very life—
in the service of and for the kingdom of God.

God is, however, concerned about your physical being as well as your immortal soul.

Life, God's precious gift,
is something to be cherished and lived to the fullest
even as you invest it in God's purposes;
however, the life you now hold to
is but the prelude to life eternal.

God's life imparted to you through Christ is forever.

Jesus has challenged His followers to regard courageously and joyfully
the possibility of losing their physical lives in the process of serving Him and their fellow beings.

Such a loss, in that event, resolves in immeasurable gain.

Christ challenges you to fear not what may happen to your physical being or those possessions you hold dear, but to reserve your fear for those things or those people who may be capable of obstructing your relationship to God and thereby cheating you out of life eternal.

In respect to your life and circumstances in this world, stop being afraid!

God truly cares about you.

Matthew 10:26-33; 11:25-30

God Knows Your Needs

And whatever you ask in prayer, you will receive, if you have faith.—Matthew 21:22

Jesus was one of you; He lived in your world.
He knows well the doubts that afflict you,
    the temptations that press upon you.
He knows, as well, the infinite power of true faith,
    the kind of faith that can move mountains of apparent impossibility and restore you to and keep you within the gracious will of God.
The Father does not dispense upon you all that you request of Him, because many of your whims and wishes are not necessary to your growth in His kingdom—
            and, indeed, may even hinder such growth.
But He knows your true needs; He hears your prayers.
He is ready to grant you everything that is required to enable you to be His loving and serving children.

You know how Jesus worked among the people in His day—responding to their needs with heaven's gracious power far beyond what they dared to ask for or expect.
The Holy Spirit continues to work among you—with the same love and power—healing, redeeming, setting free, and granting to you everything you need to give meaning and purpose to your lives.
God the Father expects you to recognize those needs and to submit them in trusting prayer to Him.

And having recognized and submitted those needs,
you are to faithfully carry on, apart from tangible evidence,
with the assurance that God has granted or will grant you His answer to your requests and His grace to accomplish the purposes of His kingdom in and through your lives.

If you will cease attempting to use God and allow Him to use you in accordance with His divine will, then you need not doubt;
for you are living and praying in faith,
and you are the recipients of God's uncountable blessings.

Matthew 21:16-25

Dark Nights and Difficult Days

Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.—Luke 12:32

There will be anxious moments in your life.
The world is insecure and unpredictable, and there are circumstances over which the Father does not have immediate control.

There is evil all about you which for a time will threaten and tempt and wound even the children of God.

You cannot avoid these things any more than Christ could when He was upon this world.

You will fear, even doubt at times;
you will hurt and be unhappy.
There will be dark nights and difficult days.

There is one thing, however, of which you can be sure;
it is the love of the heavenly Father.

This will never change even when the storms beat mercilessly upon your soul.

If your faith is in Christ and the Father,
it will be shaken but it will never be destroyed.

When you know Jesus, you know the Father.

You know Him as a loving and just God who through Christ drew you to Himself.

God is not about to let you go,
to let some devil come between you and Him.

You are forever a child of God,
and there is nothing in your world or your universe
that can mar that relationship.

God will not always shield you from anxieties or wounds, but He will give you the strength and courage to face them.

He will, through the faith He has planted in your being,
use even the fearful, distasteful, painful circumstances that afflict you to mature you,
to hone your mind and mellow your spirit and prepare you for the gifts of His Spirit, that you may be an effective instrument
in the accomplishment of His purposes in your world.

Luke 12:22-34

God Made Visible

Then He said to Thomas, “Put your finger here, and see My hands; and put out your hand, and place it in My side; do not be faithless, but believing.”—John 20:27

It is not surprising that you long for tangible evidence of God's presence with you.

It is impossible for a human being born into and reared in this three-dimensional world to comprehend those vast, eternal dimensions of God that cannot be discerned by human faculties.

Even your God-inculcated faith needs the support of physical evidences, the assurance transmitted through God-given emotional feelings, that God is God and that Jesus is speaking the words and performing the works of His Father.

This is the reason that Jesus, God-incarnate, the Word made flesh, came to you by way of the manger and lived among you to be seen and heard and touched by you.

It is for this reason that He submitted to the hands of this world's unbelieving rulers and gave up His body to death on your behalf, only to be resurrected by the Father and to appear again to those who followed Him.

On one of the post-Resurrection appearances Jesus invited a skeptical disciple to relieve his doubts

by touching the wounds inflicted upon Him when He died on the cross.

Jesus has not left you without sufficient evidence of His human-divine presence and the salvation
God offers through Him.

You have the word of reliable witnesses through the New Testament.

You are able to touch Christ—His body and His blood—through the bread and the wine of the Sacrament.

God has given His Spirit, who abides within you and bears witness to Christ and who energizes your faith and your claim upon His saving grace.

This is enough—
this and the testimonies of the multitudes throughout history whose faith has conquered all doubts and fears and opened to them the gates to the eternal kingdom of “Blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe.”

John 20:24-29

For Those Who Sorrow and Suffer

Promise of Pain

Let not your hearts be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me.—John 14:1

Jesus knows about the pain and consternation that sometimes plague your lives.

He knows, as well, the enmity and opposition you may encounter as you seek to follow His teachings and promote His kingdom.

Remember that He warned you about this and challenges you to face courageously the loss of your goods, even the loss of your lives,
and to daringly scorn such consequences
in your loyalty to Him and His purposes.

He acknowledged long ago that sorrow and suffering would be the lot of those who follow Him.

While Christ could not promise peace and contentment
as the world interprets these,
He did promise and will fulfill the promise to flood your lives with the peace that God grants to those who yield to His saving grace.

Thus, even in the midst of troubled times and painful circumstances, you do not have to allow your hearts to be troubled.

You are secure in God irrespective of what happens to you or about you.

What Jesus permits in respect to the conflicts you encounter, the tempests that batter your lives,

He grants you the grace to endure
and ultimately to overcome.

The years you spend upon this world are as nothing
when related to eternity and the everlasting love of God.
Jesus assured His disciples that the sufferings they would contend with during His physical absence from them would not even be remembered in that day when God's kingdom is fully revealed and the forces of evil and darkness are abolished forever.
In the meantime, He would always be with them—invisibly but truly—and through His Spirit within them would hold high the hope to which they had been called.
He will likewise guide you through the dark corridors of this world's brokenness to that eternity of joy and light.
Be cheerful—and faithful—even amidst your tribulations.
Time is short;
eternity and eternal peace and joy are forever.

John 14:1-14

When One Is Desolate

I will not leave you desolate; I will come to you.
John 14:18

Before Jesus took leave of His faithful followers to do what He had often prophesied

but which they were unable to understand or accept—bear the cruel cross on their behalf and on behalf of all God's sin-ridden creatures—
He assured them that He would never leave them desolate.
Jesus knew well the sufferings they would endure
as they continued to follow His life and teachings.
His resurrection gave them the hope and courage to risk all in the proclamation of His message.
It did not, however, lessen the pain and suffering heaped upon them in their pursuance of Christ's objectives.
Many of them died violently as the consequence of their obedience to His injunctions.
Their obedience to Him,
resulting in suffering and death,
made possible the proclamation of God's love and salvation to you.

Their testimony has been handed down to you—that Jesus did not leave them desolate.
His invisible Spirit was with them
even within their sufferings, succoring, sustaining, strengthening,
holding before them the joy and hope of life everlasting.
The promise He made to them is extended to you.
The Spirit that undergirded and uplifted them is the same Spirit that abides within and about you.
Jesus cannot shield you from the suffering that impregnates this world and afflicts your individual lives,
but He will not leave you desolate.
He will not, if your faith is centered in Him and His promises, allow it to destroy you.
He will even transform it into a means of refining and sanctifying you within His purposes for your lives.

And He promises that there is an end to all pain—
that suffering will eventually usher you into incomprehensible, eternal joy.

John 14:18-24

Life's "Little Whiles"

So you have sorrow now, but I will see you again and your hearts will rejoice, and no one will take your joy from you.—John 16:22

You exist within the "little while"
of Christ's physical absence.
It began when Jesus left His disciples to return to His Father.
It will continue until He returns to gather the faithful into His kingdom.
He knows that this period may be for you,
as it was for His first disciples,
a time of sorrow, loneliness, and darkness.
There are times when you may feel,
as they felt when He was taken from them and pressed upon the cross, that leaving everything behind in order to invest their lives in His cause was for nought.
There may be moments when you find yourselves doubting the very existence of a loving God.

You know what happened to those first disciples
just two days after Jesus was placed in a tomb.
Their grief-stricken hearts were overcome with a new joy.
Their sorrow was transformed into vibrant gladness.
Their “little while” of darkness burst into the dawn of a new and glorious day.
That joy remained,
along with God’s invisible presence
through His Spirit within them, to strengthen and encourage them through the severe sufferings and trials that lay ahead.

“So you have sorrow now,” Jesus said to them,
“but I will see you again, and your hearts will rejoice.”
It is this that He says to you—even today.
Your sufferings shall not be for long;
they will come to an end.
And they are no longer the “little while” of Jesus’ absence, for He goes before you and He is with you through His Spirit that abides within you.
He is with you at all times—
even amidst the sorrows and sufferings that will haunt you from time to time.
Do not shun them or fear these “little whiles” of pain.
Learn from Christ how to use them to develop your faith and sharpen your discernment of spiritual values.

John 16:16-22

Happiness or Joy?

These things I have spoken to you, that My joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full.—John 15:11

From the very beginning of His ministry as God's Son in your midst, Jesus promised that He would bring you joy.
He did not, however, promise you happiness
as this world interprets it.
There may be many of you who will seldom find that kind of happiness.
It is because the latter is so often dependent upon the acquisition of very temporal things like material security, sensual pleasure, physical health—or the absence of sorrow and suffering in one's life.
While Jesus did not begrudge His followers temporal happiness, He warned them of the danger of making it the object or goal of their lives.
It is this kind of happiness that can suddenly turn into tragedy or despair.

This is not true of the joy that Jesus grants you.
He has come to fill your lives with eternal joy—
and it is the kind of joy that persists even within and through the hours of sorrow and the pangs of suffering.
It is the joy of being loved and accepted as God's sons and daughters

by way of His gift of righteousness, the joy of life eternal
by way of Christ's resurrection from the dead.

The receiving of this joy that Jesus grants may well entail the denial of some kinds of temporal happiness.

This kind of self-denial is never easy.

It is sometimes necessary to deny yourselves
some of the good and beautiful things of this life in order to prepare the heart for the best that God wants to give—or in order to communicate
His love and joy to others about you.

Whereas you may not have the right to continual happiness,
you, by God's gracious act of love through Jesus Christ,
have the right to eternal joy.

This joy is yours—even in the midst of unfulfilled desire and of pain.

And no one can take it away from you.

John 15:11

Does Anyone Care?

And He said to them, “Why are you afraid, O men of little faith?” Then He rose and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm.—Matthew 8:26

David, while hiding from King Saul in some dark cave, seriously wondered if anyone cared about him.

Christ's disciples who once crossed the sea with Him wondered if He really cared about them when a great storm began to toss the boat around like a wood chip in a rushing stream.
Jesus rebuked them for their lack of faith in Him and proceeded to calm the storm.
Thus Jesus continues to lovingly rebuke you for allowing the tempests of your life to drive you to some morbid cave of self-pity and despondency—
and there wondering
if your great God really cares about you.

There will be storms in your life—this Jesus promises.
There will be pain and sorrow—
this is as unavoidable with you as it was with Christ when He was in this world.
There will never, however,
be a moment when God ceases to care about you.

Whereas God does not shield you from all the storms that come your way, He assures you that He is with you in the midst of those storms and that if you continue to follow Jesus Christ,
He will keep them from destroying you.
Your God loves so deeply that He feels the hurt
and the pain that afflict the lives of His children.
The raging storms, the conflicts, the problems that batter and beat upon all His creatures must also be confronted by His redeemed sons and daughters.
But He will soften the blow and eventually bring His peace and calm to bear upon the lives that have been wounded

by the sorrows and sufferings of this life.
He will grant the courage and strength to face and to overcome those hurts and pains.

David once concluded that “He delivered me because He delighted in me.” David’s God will continue to deliver you—because you are the desire and delight of His loving heart.

Matthew 8:23-26; John 10:14-15

For Those Who Are Poor and Powerless

What About the Poor?

The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He has anointed Me to preach good news to the poor.

Luke 4:18a

If you are poor in respect to the things of this world and feel powerless under the unjust systems that seek to manipulate you and your loved ones, Jesus has something to say to you.

One of Christ's first sermons to His countrymen,
at the beginning of His ministry to this planet, dealt with Isaiah's proclamation that God would send One who would seek out the poor to bring them good news and who would set free those who were the unwilling and suffering captives of unjust political systems.

Many who heard His message that day took offense and cast Him out of the synagogue.

They could not endure being reminded that the God of history was as concerned about the poor and the foreign widows as He was about the children of Israel and that He sent His prophets to minister to them.

God is your Father, and you are dear to His heart.
Like those people among whom Jesus walked and worked,
there are multitudes today who honor His message but who are embarrassed and even offended by His concern for the poor and the oppressed of the world.
They have much to learn—or to regret

if they will not learn that their great accumulations are, in part, the reason that large masses of this world's inhabitants are poverty-stricken.

God, your Creator, has poured out His gifts upon this world.

Yet He has allowed His creatures,
this world's human inhabitants, the freedom to lust after riches
and greedily claim and accumulate things for themselves.

The heart of God grieves because so many of them claim His name without sharing His concern for those who are poor and powerless today.

Luke 4:16-30

Blessed Are the Poor

And He opened His mouth and taught them, saying: “Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.”—Matthew 5:2-3

It may be difficult for you who are poor to accept the fact that the apparent riches of many who worship Christ are not nearly as important as they think.

Their accumulations may well be the very things that keep them from entering the kingdom Jesus represents and to which you are called.

They may never know that joy

for which all men and women were created—the joy of knowing and relating to their heavenly Father through Jesus Christ.

Some of them even assume that their material riches are the result of their religious faith.

It is true that all good things come from God, but His human creatures are capable of destroying the very things that God gives by keeping them for themselves rather than using them for His purposes.

And they are used, often unknowingly and unwittingly,
to perpetuate poverty and oppression upon the world.

As strange as it may appear,
it is you who remain relatively poor among the riches of your world who are blessed in a very special way.

Your materialistic-minded peers may succeed in hoarding this world's goods, but they cannot cheat you out of the true, eternal gifts that God offers to His children.

This is why Jesus came to you as a child born in poverty;
He worked God's miracles among the poor and powerless;
He chose as His followers those who had very little in the way of material goods;
He died the death of a poverty-stricken criminal—for your sins as well as the sins of the rich and of those who oppress the poor.

You are already much closer to the kingdom of God than most of the rich and powerful people who live in this world.

Matthew 5:1-12

The Unfortunate Rich

The kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which a man found and covered up; then in his joy he goes and sells all that he has and buys that field.

Matthew 13:44

The kingdom of God is not obtainable through the efforts or the wealth of God's creatures.
It does not become acceptable—
or in any sense comprehensible—until it is desired far more than anything or everything the world may offer.
The rich or well-to-do may build huge temples
to the glory of God,
but this does not bring them closer to the kingdom.
God gives the kingdom to whom He wills;
He invites into His kingdom those who will
to enter therein.
But only those who count God's love and saving grace,
His gift of everlasting life,
as of more value and importance than anything this world offers,
and who are willing to leave all behind
in order to embrace God's ultimate and eternal gift, will become a part of the kingdom of God that Jesus has come to proclaim and prepare for you.

It may be hard enough for the poor and powerless to become a part of God's kingdom,

but it will be well-nigh impossible for those who have accumulated much of this world's goods—except, that is, for the grace of God that breaks through people's greed and teaches them how to share their wealth and power with their sisters and brothers in the human family.
Only the Spirit of God can work such miracles in the hearts of men and women.

The poor have other obstacles that tend to distract them and keep them from the gift of life offered freely by the Father.
They may be fortunate in that they will not be hindered by the finite wealth of the world as so many are—even those who profess to be Christians and claim to follow Jesus.

Matthew 13:44-46; 19:23-26

The Real Winners

But Abraham said, "Son, remember that you in your lifetime received your good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now he is comforted here, and you are in anguish."—Luke 16:25

You remember the story of the rich man and Lazarus. The parable was an attempt to illustrate that a person's status in this world is not indicative of what his status will be in the new kingdom.

Though all rich people do not relish their power or handle their wealth as did this rich man in his relationship with Lazarus, there are those who greedily obtain for themselves everything they can get as if this world and its rapidly deteriorating accumulations were the sum total of life.

They will ultimately discover that there is another life and kingdom they will have to take account of
and that the ephemeral thrills of this world are capable of canceling out forever the supreme joy of the next.

You have missed out on the highly touted and overrated thrills of opulence and overindulgence
in this sin-ridden world.

Nothing, however, save your failure to embrace the God of eternal love as revealed through Christ's life, death, and resurrection, can stand in the way of His eternal riches given even now but fully realized only in the new kingdom.

God has promised to grant you those things you need to exist and what is necessary to carry out His will in your lives.
Even without the wealth and power that millions, even those who call Jesus their Lord, persistently pursue,
you are the precious children of God and you are the beloved disciples of Jesus Christ.

God, through His Spirit, has endowed you with a power which,
though invisible to the power-seekers of this world, is greater than either you or they can even dream of.

They may be able to build shrines and conduct spectacular programs and win the plaudits of the masses, but you, the comparably and apparently poor and powerless of this world, will win something far better—

the commendation of your Father in heaven.

Luke 16:19-26

Poverty Without Shame

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.

Luke 18:25

Jesus once sent His disciples out without money or baggage or even shoes on their feet—enjoining them to witness of the Father's love and the kingdom of God to those they met on the road.
They discovered that, even without material goods,
they lacked nothing.
At another time Jesus informed a rich and powerful man who felt that something was lacking in his life that he,
if he were truly to discover fulfillment,
must give away all his riches and follow Jesus Christ.
Jesus pointed out to His disciples that the poor widow who cast her last few pennies into the temple treasury was giving far more than the wealthy religionists who dropped in their large pieces of gold.

Corinto

To be poor or powerless is not necessarily honorable.
It may merely be the result of living in this world where humankind's greed prevents a fair distribution of God's abundant but limited gifts to the world's masses.
God, for the time being, allows this to happen,
    knowing that the careless misuse and waste of His gifts is depleting the rich resources of the world He created and is thereby bringing poverty to millions of its inhabitants.
God has His own way and time in which to bring judgment upon such carelessness and greed.
In the meantime, neither is poverty something to be ashamed of—except for those who contribute to it.
In fact, every man and woman is poverty-stricken before God.
It is the poor of the world who may be closer to that realization than those who are smugly ensconced in their materialistic enterprises and the worldly prestige these bring to them.
Thus it is that the kingdom of God belongs to the poor and powerless who embrace the invisible
        but eternal riches of God's saving grace.
As such they are, as sons and daughters of God's kingdom, wealthier and more potent than all the unregenerate creatures of this planet.

Matthew 10:7-10; Luke 18:18-30; 21:1-4

For Those Who Are Waiting for the New Kingdom

The Kingdom of God Is Here

Whenever you enter a town and they receive you, eat what is set before you; heal the sick in it and say to them, “The kingdom of God has come near to you.”

Luke 10:8-9

To you who are waiting for the kingdom of God to come to you, the coming of Jesus Christ assures us that it is already here.

It remains a hidden kingdom for the masses of the world, but for those who recognize that Jesus has come from the Father and to those who accept Him as their Savior and King, the kingdom of God is a reality, and your allegiance to and participation in God's kingdom is an authentic and daily experience.

It is, furthermore, an everlasting experience.

An infant belongs to the parents that gave him birth and, though not consciously aware of it, is a full-fledged member of the family into which he or she was born.

Thus you who truly believe and have been baptized in Christ's name are, even without being fully aware of your relationship to God, citizens of His everlasting kingdom.

The kingdom of God is here.

It came to you through Jesus Christ; you enter it by embracing Him as your Savior from sin and death.

You are and will forever be citizens and subjects,
children and servants, of the kingdom of God.

It is as such that you are ambassadors and ministers of God's kingdom—witnessing to God's saving grace and Christ's redeeming love in loving relationships and joyous proclamations to people around you.

Indeed, when you are near to them,
the kingdom is near to them.

They are not compelled to enlist in God's kingdom, but will incur the judgment of God
if they persistently refuse to accept Jesus Christ.

There are those, however, who will recognize the new life and kingdom through your faithful witness and who will,
as you did, become its citizens and servants.

John 5:19-24; Luke 10:8-9; 17:21

The Joy of Belonging

No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.—Matthew 6:24

You belong to the kingdom of God.
Whereas you wait for that day
when it will be fully revealed and completely in control of those evil forces that resist it in this hour,

you are members of that great, eternal kingdom now.

It is not necessary for you to indicate by pious attitudes and actions your relationship to that kingdom.

You don't have to advertize that you have found it—except when it is a loving witness that may attract others who may want to know and experience it.

You no longer need to worry about the insecurity of the worldly kingdom
in which you live and to which you are responsible.

You need not be overconcerned about the material or physical needs of your life.

You dare not focus upon accumulating the things of your world, lest such things blind you to the importance and value of God's eternal kingdom and His life and purposes for you.

You live within two kingdoms—
the eternal and righteous kingdom of God and the temporal kingdom of your world.

While you have duties and responsibilities to your worldly kingdom, and you have temporal needs that must be attended to in your present human condition, you need to be aware of your priorities—
that life on earth will make little sense, its worldly offerings present little satisfaction or meaning, unless your relationship to God's kingdom is the most important thing in your life.

It is only when God and His purposes are of prior importance in your life that these lesser, worldly-kingdom matters will somehow fit into place.

Remember that in which you are rooted,
that to which you are committed,
that to which you belong forever.

Live for God and His kingdom,
and all other things in your life, even the painful and sorrowful,
will resolve in eternal joy.

Matthew 5:3; 6:1-34

God's Kingdom Revealed

Then the disciples came and said to Him, "Why do You speak to them in parables?" And He answered them, "To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given."

Matthew 13:10-11

Only those who hear Christ's words and become His disciples will understand anything about the kingdom of God.

Only to them will God's Spirit reveal something of its mystery and might.

The unregenerate and unbelieving of your world are much too occupied with their foolish toys to comprehend anything about the immeasurable riches of God's kingdom.

And as long as they continue in that state,
they will never understand His will for the universe or His purpose for their lives.

You, however, can know something about the kingdom that abides within you and about you.

Like seed cast into the ground,
the kingdom of God has been planted in your midst.

Like good grain in the midst of obnoxious weeds,
it grows all about you.

Like a precious pearl among the cheap trinkets that clutter up your world,
it continues to exist in and around you.

It towers above the institutions and philosophies created and glorified by the small minds of earthbound men like a great, green pine tree above the desert chaparral.

It is salt in the midst of putrification, light amidst darkness, joy over against the cheap thrills that temporarily attract and amuse the multitudes.

Paintings cannot describe it; words cannot explain it.
Only the Spirit of God can imprint upon the human spirit something of its meaning and significance.

Only as you totally commit yourself to this kingdom as it is revealed and represented through Jesus Christ will it become real to you.

Only when God's purposes for your world are consummated,
and space and time are absorbed by eternity,
will His kingdom be fully revealed and known to His redeemed and adopted children.

Matthew 13:18-50

You Shall Live Forever

Truly, truly, I say to you, if anyone keeps My word, he will never see death.—John 8:51

Jesus spoke the truth to those who would listen
when He walked upon this world.
Most of those who heard Him, however,
did not really listen to Him;
many were convinced that Christ was demonic,
and they were ready to destroy Him.
Even the followers and friends of Jesus were deeply disturbed by some of the things He had to say.
He was, however, proclaiming the truth—
and God, through the resurrection of Christ, provided ample evidence of that truth.

Even some of you, despite the many witnesses of Christ's miracles and resurrection, remain skeptical and uncertain
about what God has done for you through Him.
What He promised then has already been granted.
It is the abolition of death and the gift of eternal life.
It is absolutely true: the sons and daughters of God shall live forever.
The atrocious event of death that threatens and appears to destroy what God has created becomes His very servant that swings open the gates to life everlasting.
Jesus has overcome death's evil intent and power
by rising from the dead.

You are already citizens of the new kingdom.
This status does not change when you must close your eyes and leave behind the known and the familiar of your earthly existence.

You need not fear that ultimate event;
it only guarantees that you shall hereafter know and experience fully the splendor and beauty of the new kingdom where death is abolished forever and where you can live and serve in supreme joy without the limitations and temptations of mortal life upon this earth.

Even while you cherish the life you endure or enjoy here,
there need be no regrets in leaving it behind.

It is true:
because you accept the life Jesus has come to bring,
you shall live forever.

John 8:51; 11:25-26

You Have Nothing to Fear

My sheep hear My voice, and I know them and they follow Me; and I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish, and no one shall snatch them out of My hand.—John 10:27-28

As God's beloved children you are to follow Jesus Christ—
His life as your example,
His teachings as your guidebook.

If God's will is to become your will for your life,
then you will know that what Jesus says is from Him.
Jesus is your Lord and your Leader.
He will show you the way.
He is with you always—no matter how rough the road ahead or how tempestuous the elements about you.
You can rest assured that He will watch over you—as a shepherd watches his sheep or a mother her children.
You have received through Christ
the gift of everlasting life.
It means that you are God's forever,
that He will be your Guide forever.
You have nothing to fear.
There is nothing,
save your own willful efforts to escape Christ's love,
that can separate you from Him.
He will not coerce you to follow Him,
but if following Him is your desire and will,
nothing can stand between you and God's purpose
for your life.
And His purposes have been revealed through Christ.
Do you not understand what this means?
You do not have to grope about in doubt and darkness.
You do not have to question your identity or validity.
You never need to feel alone or unloved or lost or insecure—whatever the world's cruel circumstances or humankind's atrocious accidents.
Nothing can alter your status and significance.
You belong to God,
and Jesus is your Savior and Lord forever.

John 10:27-30

Waiting or Working?

Let your loins be girded and your lamps burning, and be like men who are waiting for their master to come home from the marriage feast, so that they may open to him at once when he comes and knocks. Blessed are those servants whom the Master finds awake when He comes.

Luke 12:35-37a

While there are many of God's children who are watching and working for the advancement of the kingdom of God, there are multitudes who are committed to waiting only.

They are like those groups of people in the early days of the church who pulled out of the mainstream of public life in order to create communities of waiting people—expecting that Christ would soon return to deliver them once and for all from the pressures and temptations of their sin-ridden world.

These, and the scores of confessing Christians in this day who ignore their responsibilities to the human family in their attempts to save themselves from the dangers of risk and pain, may be calling Jesus their Lord
but they are not acting like His servants.

They create for themselves snug harbors that shield them from life's storms and will hopefully keep them from becoming tainted by the evil world about them.

They separate themselves from their sisters and brothers and, in effect, are self-serving and thereby self-centered rather than the communicators and transmitters of Christ's love and healing

to the brokenness about them.

You are to be reminded that the kingdom of God is already in your midst.

Jesus has promised to return
and ultimately to fully reveal that kingdom, gathering into its portals the faithful
from the past, present, and future generations.

This has not yet taken place;
it may not happen in your lifetime.

But happen it will.

When this great event does take place,
it will catch millions unaware and unprepared to enter into the kingdom.

There will be scores of others, avid religionists, confessors and professors of the Christian faith,
who have been anxiously awaiting the great event but who have contributed almost nothing toward preparing others
for what Jesus promised would take place.

You are to be aware of Christ's final return and revelation, to watch for it, to welcome it,
even while you are obediently active and fruitful in the process of serving Him by serving the citizens of the world around you.

Luke 12:35-48

The Joy of Serving

It is like a grain of mustard seed which a man took and sowed in his garden; and it grew and became a tree, and the birds of the air made nests in its branches.—Luke 13:19

Like a small seed that grows into a large,
branch-waving tree,
or a little leaven that permeates a whole loaf,
so the kingdom of God, often invisible to your eyes, apparently insignificant and of little note in the eyes of the world, is on its way to becoming the greatest happening the universe has ever witnessed.

Again, as with seed or leaven,
the phenomenon of growth within God's kingdom
does not depend wholly upon your efforts.

Whereas your contributions are significant,
the essential growth of God's kingdom is accomplished by way of God's Spirit who,
through Christ's word and witness as related by you, invisibly but profoundly touches and transforms the lives and spirits of the human creatures around you.

You are responsible, as God's children and as Christ's followers and servants, for sowing the seed, or injecting leaven into the lump.

You are to do this through loving deeds and joyous proclamations through which God's life and Word are sown in the hearts of individuals who cross your paths.

You can do little more than this—nor are you expected to.
The invisible leaven of God's Spirit will permeate the lives of those who respond to His Word of life

as reflected in your lives,
and will thereby draw people into His kingdom.

There is no way in which you can convert people or coerce anyone to enlist in God's kingdom.

Beware lest you unwittingly assume the Holy Spirit's role of drawing people to God and His kingdom.

The Spirit of God seeks to use you;
He will not, however, bless your attempts to use Him in order to accomplish your objectives or further your goals.

The joy of serving God is yours;
the glory of large or small successes
in the course of such service is God's.

The celebrated consequence is the growth and advancement of the kingdom of God in your world today.

Luke 13:18-21

Are You Ready?

The kingdom of God is not coming with signs to be observed; nor will they say, “Lo, here it is!” or “There!” for behold, the kingdom of God is in the midst of you.

Luke 17:20b-21

The kingdom of God cannot be measured by statistics or pictured through surveys and graphs—though many religious leaders persist in attempting to identify and communicate their success by such methods.

While you struggle in vain to realize some tangible evidence of the kingdom—for something to point people to in the effort to lead them to God—remember that you, as God's redeemed sons and daughters, are of that kingdom; it is present within you.

It is necessary, therefore, that you be wary of those self-ordained prophets who try to sell you some nonsense about knowing where the kingdom is or when it will appear.

They are phonies—or sincere but deluded fools.

The kingdom will be fully revealed in God's own time.

Christ shall make it known at that time and there shall no longer be any doubts as to the fact and nature and eternal presence and power of God's kingdom.

Until that great day, however, things will continue much as they now do—farming, building, marketing, rearing children, schooling, pleasure-seeking,

money-making, love-making, joy and sorrow,
peace and war, greediness and goodness.
Of this you can be sure: for the vast masses of this world's inhabitants, the final revelation of the kingdom will come suddenly and surprisingly,
with many of this world's human creatures utterly unprepared to greet it and embrace it.

It need not be that way with you.
God has through Christ's coming, His teachings,
His death and resurrection,
prepared and introduced you to that kingdom.
Because you are even now a part of that kingdom,
you, if you continue to wait and watch in faith and serve in love, will always be ready to welcome its revelation with joy.

Luke 17:20-37

When Faith Endures

Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom his master has set over his household, to give them their food at the proper time? Blessed is that servant whom his master when he comes will find so doing.

Matthew 24:45-46

It is Jesus' profound concern that not one of you should abdicate the kingdom

into which you have been received.

There will be many temptations.

Siren voices will reach out to you,

    seducing, deluding, seeking to lead you astray.

The world will continue to be wracked by cataclysmic events.

Governments will fail; traditions will be nullified;

    customs and mores will change.

There are catastrophes affecting the lives of millions of the world's inhabitants in this very moment;

persecution, torture, imprisonment, even death is the lot of scores of God's children even now.

It is not surprising that many who would follow Jesus are betrayed by the false promises of temporal peace and comfort,

    even of material wealth and boundless health,

    that are handed out by leaders Christ has not chosen,

    who are twisting His teachings into claims

    He never intended.

This world will never be transformed into the kingdom of God.

Nor will it become an eternal oasis of glory and light.

It is subject to death,

    and is even now dying in its iniquity.

Only those of you who faithfully follow Christ will live forever.

Yet even you shall suffer within this suffering world.

There will, at times,

    be excruciating pain and agonizing sorrow.

This was Jesus' lot when He lived as man in this world.

It is and shall be, in some measure, your lot and affliction.

It is those whose faith endures all this to the end who can be assured of salvation.

You don't have to be afraid of whatever will happen to you or to this world.

Christ guarantees,
though He does not reveal the day or the hour,
that these terrible things that transpire in the world will come to an end.
You shall live forever in the joy and glory of God's eternal kingdom.

Matthew 24:1-44

Watchful, Expectant, and Obedient

Then the King will say to those at His right hand, “Come, O blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was hungry and you gave Me food, I was thirsty and you gave Me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed Me.”

Matthew 25:34-35

Do not be anxious or afraid about what is happening
in this world.
Instead be watchful, expectant,
for even through the evil that exists about you,
and in the hearts of people around you,
God is working out His purposes.
The very sufferings that afflict you are,
in effect, preparing you for the great new kingdom
that you have inherited.

Nevertheless, as you faithfully watch and wait for the final ingathering and revelation of that kingdom, you are enjoined to faithfully serve—to dedicate your lives and talents and possessions to the accomplishment of God's purposes in this world.

You are to serve that kingdom
by serving God's creatures around you.

The new kingdom Jesus has established in your midst is the kingdom of love, and that love is extended through you to your fellow beings.

Inasmuch as you serve them, you are serving Christ.

The simple but profound acts of feeding the hungry,
bringing cheer and hope to the ill,
accepting in love the stranger,
and showing concern for the imprisoned are done for Christ and for God the Father.

In may well be most difficult to take sides with the poor and oppressed, the maligned and abused, even against the very powers
that have benefited your material existence;
but in doing so you may be serving Christ's purposes and accomplishing His objectives.

It is those indifferent, self-centered people who care for little else than their own material and physical welfare who are farthest from the kingdom of God—
and who may become the very enemies of God.

The kingdom of God is in your midst.
It will, in God's own time, be fully revealed.
As you are aware of it, expectant about it,
and working to extend its love and power

among your fellow persons, you are prepared to welcome its fulfillment and to embrace its Christ as your Lord and King forever.

Matthew 25:31-46

For Those Who Aspire to Leadership

So You Want to Be a Leader

But Jesus said to them, “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I drink, or to be baptized with the baptism with which I am baptized?”

Mark 10:38

Some of you are called to be leaders within the new kingdom that Jesus represents and which He inaugurated in your midst.
Beware lest you take the appointment lightly.
It by no means increases your status in the eyes of God;
it does not make you more significant than His other children.
Nor is it something you should selfishly aspire to or even assume to be your calling as Christ's disciples.
Be wary of those inner desires to be king-of-the-hill,
to be prominent or important, to be regarded as someone special in the eyes of your peers.
Only those who are gifted and empowered and chosen by the Spirit of God will be granted the courage and strength—and the humility—to properly and effectively carry out the assignments of leadership.
Do not seek the appointment to leadership;
let the appointment, if it is of God, seek you out.

You are all called to be the ministers and servants of God.
Jesus has set the example, and His Spirit daily grants you the grace to live and act as such.

You all have roles to play and parishes to serve in the grand business of proclaiming and advancing God's kingdom in this world.

Even while you minister in love to your fellow beings,
and witness to them concerning God's eternal love, you are fulfilling God's will for you even if such loving service is not recognized and applauded by others.

The important calling of your life
is to be faithful to God, and you are expected to carry out that calling and ministry right where you are.

You do well to remember that leadership will place upon you responsibilities and demand sacrifices you may not be willing or able to assume.

Be reluctant about accepting the mantle of leadership—
unless God Himself places it upon you.

Then be recklessly courageous about serving God wherever He leads you
and in whatever He commands you to do.

Mark 10:35-40

Leadership Versus Servanthood

But whoever would be great among you must be your servant, and whoever would be first among you must be slave of all.—Mark 10:43b-44

In the eyes of the world, leadership is usually associated with power and prominence; it is often sought after by very egocentric people. Such people desire to be coddled, even idolized; they want authority, and they enjoy lording it over their constituents; they want to be served by them. This is not so in Christ's kingdom. The kingdom of God is served and promulgated by those who serve others, whose leaders are those who become the servants of all. It is true that you are enjoined to follow Christ, to serve Him, but this was possible only after He served you and His Father by reconciling you to your Creator. As Jesus has been your servant, so you are made His servants, and you serve Him by serving your brothers and sisters in the human family.

This is especially true of those who are chosen to be leaders; their greatness or effectiveness is determined by the quality of their servanthood.

God sent Jesus to this world for the purpose of giving His life for you and for all the inhabitants of this planet.
It is because of this that Christ is your leader and claims lordship over those who become His disciples.
Those who are authorized to proclaim Christ's Word and teach His precepts do so as His servants, and they serve their fellow creatures
in the process of doing so.
Jesus has exhorted you who aspire to leadership to regard such servanthood as more important than your very lives,
to carry out your service without concern for consequences and with even less concern for accolades or accommodations.
It is those who lovingly serve in this manner who,
even without official appointment or recognition, become the real leaders in the kingdom of God.

Mark 10:42-45

Feet-Washing Servanthood

And He sat down and called the twelve; and He said to them, “If any one would be first, he must be last of all and servant of all.”—Mark 9:35

When you aspire to some position of leadership, mark well Christ's example as your Lord and Master.

As Jesus did not hesitate to perform the humblest act of service on behalf of His followers, so your Christian leaders ought to emulate Him and realize that the humblest and most unpretentious act of loving service toward their constituents is service to God and His kingdom.

While the leaders of this world often seek their ends through coercion or manipulation, bribery or compromise, the leaders of Christ's kingdom accomplish their objectives by way of self-sacrificing love.

Jesus is not recommending or guaranteeing that this kind of leadership will bring worldly glory or success.

Indeed, the world will regard such activities
as very foolish, even cowardly and impotent.

Even many who profess Christ's name are more attracted by strong, authoritative, spectacular activities which they associate with true leadership.

These may titillate the imaginations and loyalties
of many people;
they seldom bring people into the kingdom,
nor do they please the heart of God.

Jesus did not call His disciples to positions of leadership;
He sent them forth to be the servants of the kingdom
by serving their fellow beings.

In the process of doing this, most of them were guided by His Spirit into positions of leadership.

They followed the example Christ set before them—
many of them literally losing their lives in the process of serving humanity by proclaiming and demonstrating His redeeming love.

Nor does Jesus call you to be leaders;
He calls you to be servants—to lovingly stoop even to the feet-washing level of your neighbor's needs—

that God's infinite love may be revealed through you.

John 13:1-20; Mark 9:35

Beware of Greatness

Whoever humbles himself like this child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 18:4

The principles of the kingdom Jesus represents appear to be paradoxical to the kingdoms of this world.
Indeed, they are.

Whereas the multitudes of this world are attracted by physical prowess, mental capacity, material wealth, or by those talents that entertain or inspire or stimulate,
true greatness, as presented and interpreted within the kingdom of God, begins with the open, honest, trusting heart
of a little child.

Thus the purposes of God will be served far better through the unostentatious, unassuming, yet caring, loving lives of men and women who follow Christ's example of servanthood than through the arrogance of self-ordained leaders who succeed in drawing masses of people into their fold.

Every flock must have a shepherd.

While Jesus is the Good Shepherd sent by His Father to gather together His kingdom, some of you may be chosen to be undershepherds who are responsible, as Christ's servants, for teaching and leading people in the way He has set before you.

As Christ, the Great Shepherd, laid down His life for you and for all who will follow Him, so you are to serve your brothers and sisters with that kind of love and concern.

If you are faithful leaders of the people of God,
He will do great things through you.
The truly great things He does may not be visible to you,
but God sees and knows.
Do not be concerned about visible results—which may be withheld from you lest you accept credit for them unto yourselves.
You are not to seek greatness.
You are to be concerned about and grateful for your personal relationship to Jesus and the Father, the fact that you are forever God's children and servants.
May that be the ultimate source and goal of all your joy.

Matthew 18:1-4; Luke 10:17-20; John 10:14-15

Every Christian a Servant

*He who is greatest among you shall be your servant;
whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.—Matthew 23:11-12*

In this world the crown of leadership is usually given to those who are “winners,” who are gregarious and aggressive,
who sell themselves as persons of capacity and insight, who possess special gifts or abilities that promise to grant pleasure or security or problem-solving techniques to those who follow them.

This was true when Christ walked among God’s creatures on this planet; it would be equally true if He were man-born-of-woman among you today—few of this world’s multitudes would accept Him
as their leader.

If you are delegated leadership
as a result of your aspiring or striving,
it is a precarious position that you assume.

Those who are truly led by the Spirit of God into positions of leadership will often be considered to be “losers” by the world-at-large.

This is because they follow Jesus Christ,
and His leadership is synonymous with servanthood.

It is because they, rather than resolving the conflicts and problems of this world, point to the new kingdom and to their God, who alone

can resolve the conflicts and struggles of humanity.
Rather than promoting themselves and their own glory,
they lead people in glorifying God.

Instead of promising people success,
they challenge them to make sacrifices;
instead of comforting them
in their self-centeredness and apathy, they provoke them into accepting responsibility for the poor and less fortunate about them.

Instead of being the leaders of people,
they take the lead in being servants to people—
seeking to lead them into spiritual fulfillment, as well as responding to their physical needs.

This is because they are lovers of people rather than masters of people, and they dedicate themselves to communicating, in word and deed, God's saving love and grace to His creatures about them.

In this manner and measure
you are all called to be leaders and teachers, servants of your heavenly Father.

Matthew 23:1-12

For Those Who Question the Divinity/Humanity of Christ

God and Man

And when Jesus was baptized, He went up immediately from the water, and behold, the heavens were opened and He saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and alighting on Him; and lo, a voice from heaven, saying, "This is My beloved Son with whom I am well pleased."

Matthew 3:16-17

It would appear that many of you still do not know who Jesus Christ really is.
To some people He is God made visible, an apparition of sorts that appeared upon the world for a short period of time only to ultimately return to His eternal throne in some distant universe.
To others Jesus is a person of illegitimate beginnings who became a teacher and a prophet, a Jewish mystic who,
on behalf of the poor and outcast, dedicated His life to creating a religion of peace and goodness, or a radical rabbi determined to overthrow the foreign oppressors of the Jews
as well as their corrupt religious leaders.
To many who stood against Christ in His day
He was some kind of a magician who possessed demonic powers or a dangerous false prophet who dared to claim divine origins.

The fact is, Jesus is the Son of God and man-born-of-woman.
God Himself bore witness to His true identity as His beloved Son.

So did the devil who, knowing that Christ came from God, and knowing, as well, His status as man-born-of-woman, attempted in vain to short-circuit His ministry by tempting Him to utilize His divine power for selfish purposes—like turning stones into bread with which to feed Himself, or gathering a following by performing supernatural feats,
or winning the world without suffering or dying, by acknowledging and submitting to Satan's dark and destructive powers.

Jesus Christ is truly the Son of God;
yet, because He was man-born-of-woman,
these were strong temptations.

He was sorely tested when His human body ached with hunger after weeks of fasting, and His human spirit became fatigued as He was confronted with the price He would have to pay in introducing God's kingdom to a world of sinful creatures.

As Son of God and sent by God,
Jesus knew what His Father willed,
and He determined to do what He had to do,
for He had come in order that,
even through suffering and death,
He might grant life and joy to a dying world.

Matthew 3:16—4:11

Son of God—Man-Born-of-Woman

Again the high priest asked Him, “Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?” And Jesus said, “I am; and you will see the Son of man seated at the right hand of power, and coming with the clouds of heaven.”—Mark 14:61b-62

Jesus Christ is, indeed, the Son of God.
This was His answer to the high priest's question during His trial before the religious leaders of His day.
This is His answer to the religious and nonreligious people of the world.
For this reason Christ was crucified.
In thought and intent, that betrayal and crucifixion continues even within some of the fine religious institutions of this day.
It was as God's Son and as man-born-of-woman that He came to the world with the glorious message of God's love.
It was as such that He made possible your redemption
    by His death and resurrection.

To this very hour it is true that those who refuse to accept Jesus Christ as Son of God refuse to honor the Father, God Himself.
The prophets of old announced the coming of Christ;
    John the Baptist bore witness as to His having come;
        the disciples from that time until this have,
            at the risk of their lives, proclaimed Christ's salvation and His lordship over the kingdom of God that is in your midst.

The words Jesus spoke, the acts He performed, are the words and acts of His Father,
and they prove that He has come from God.

Everything He did was by God's authority alone.

The life He brings to you is God's life, eternal life,
and those who believe in Christ believe in God
and are the recipients of that life.

Jesus does not bear witness to Himself, but to His Father.

Those who receive His witness, who come to Him as He is revealed through the Scriptures, they come to God and are received by Him into His eternal kingdom.

You have not and you will not hear God speak—except as He has spoken through Christ.

Jesus said truly: "I am the Way and the Truth and the Life; no one comes to the Father but by Me."

Mark 14:61-62; John 5:19-47; 14:6-24

They Knew Him as Man

Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts, "Why does this Man speak thus? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?"

Mark 2:6-7

Jesus upset some of the religious people during His ministry when He said to the paralytic that was brought to Him, and, at another time, to the woman who bestowed her affection upon Him, "Your sins are forgiven."

The bystanders were outraged; "Only God can forgive sins," they announced with anger in their voices.

They were right in their understanding that God alone can forgive the sins that His creatures commit against Him and their fellow beings.

They were wrong, however, in not accepting Christ as having been sent by God, as the Messiah, the very Son of God.

In the instance concerning the paralytic, Jesus further witnessed to His divine origin by miraculously healing the man of his incurable disease.

In the instance concerning the woman, His humanity was made obvious as He gratefully received her act of love that was performed upon Him in the presence of His followers.

As far as the people of that day, including Christ's faithful followers, were concerned, there was no question as to His humanity—
that He was man-born-of-woman.

They caught only glimpses of His divine nature
from time to time;
only three of His disciples were allowed to witness the transfiguration event on the mountain.

His human nature was apparent to them as they walked with Him and were aware of His human reactions to events about them.

While Peter, inspired by the Spirit, boldly declared Christ's divine origin and many accepted Him and followed Him as a man sent by God, their loyalty was in great part to a man who they hoped would make Israel a great nation again.

Not until Christ's resurrection
after His followers witnessed His dying on the cross, did they, assured by the Spirit in their hearts that He truly was the Son of God, see Him fully as the living Christ.

What a difference it made in their lives
when they finally accepted Jesus Christ,
not only as man-born-of-woman,
but as God's beloved Son sent to reconcile the creatures of this world to the kingdom of His Father, God!

Mark 2:5-12; Luke 7:44-50; Matthew 16:13-23

He Was Revealed as Divine

Jesus said to them, “Truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I am.”—John 8:58

While Jesus never sought for self-glory in His time upon this world, He spoke the truth to those who questioned His identity.

The recognition of His Father in heaven was enough for Him even though, as man-born-of-woman, He was tempted by the forces of darkness to accept adulation and accolades for Himself.

Christ's rightful insistence that He came from the Father and, in truth, existed even before Abraham, the ancestral father of the Jews, incensed the religious leaders.

This promoted and propelled their plans for His eventual and violent exodus from this world.

Because Jesus was man-born-of-woman, He suffered, He tired, He hungered; He was hurt by the people's continued refusal to accept God's love as revealed through Him.

As Son of God He knew well that most of the people to whom He ministered would resist His revelation of God the Father and that He would have to suffer and die for the sins of the world.

Even though He knew that God would be glorified through this—and would raise Him from the dead—

the pain and shame and loneliness of the cross, and the inability of even His dearest friends
to understand and support Him,
was almost humanly impossible to bear.

Christ's suffering and death verified His humanity;
the resurrection from the dead proclaimed His divinity.
His close followers put the pieces together and emerged from those desperate hours
as victorious leaders of the new kingdom.

You are now God's chosen ones appointed to live out
the truth and power, the life and joy, the redeeming and reconciling love of the Father
as it has been revealed through Jesus Christ,
the Son of God and man-born-of-woman,
God-incarnate, who now dwells in you,
His disciples and His servants, forever.

John 8:53-58; 12:26-36

Believe in Christ—Believe in God

And Jesus cried out and said, “He who believes in Me, believes not in Me but in Him who sent Me. And he who sees Me sees Him who sent Me.”—John 12:44-45

Jesus insisted that He was not the Father;
He was the Son of His Father-God.
God has come to you through Christ, man-born-of-woman.

As you hear His words, you hear the words of God the Father.
When you plant your faith in what Christ has done and said, you have faith in God—receiving Him and His gracious, forgiving, redeeming love through Christ.
His words declare God's salvation, and they declare God's judgment upon those who refuse to accept His salvation through Jesus Christ.
The gift of everlasting life that God offers is granted through His Son.
Those who refuse Christ—His words and deeds—refuse the Father who sent Him.

When you pray to God, you pray to Him as He has been revealed to you by Jesus Christ.
As you serve God, you serve Him by obeying Christ's words, spoken by God's authority, and by emulating Christ's life
    as He lived and served in this world.
Christ is not the Father;
    He spoke and acted, ruled and judged
    as authorized by the Father.

You cannot fully comprehend this amazing thing that God has done in your midst.
Enough has been revealed, however,
    to enable you to believe, to trust,
    to live in loving obedience to God and His will for you.
The day is coming,
    and that time is known only by the Father,
    when He shall visibly return to this world and gather you into the great, eternal kingdom of God.
Then the dimness of your finite minds will be removed,
    the obstacles of your mortality eliminated,
    and you will understand and rejoice fully in the presence of God and His Son, Jesus Christ.

Until that day, Christ is with you through His Spirit,
the Spirit of God,
who will comfort, counsel, and guide you upon the paths He has set before you.

John 12:44-50; Mark 13:24-27

For Those Who Would Follow Christ

Called to Serve

I sent you to reap that for which you did not labor; others have labored, and you have entered into their labor.

John 4:38

Jesus' first disciples soon became aware during His ministry with them, that the foremost objective of His life was to accomplish the purposes of His heavenly Father.
This was, indeed, more important to Him than eating or drinking or sleeping or anything else that He was to experience upon this world.

Though their priorities were initially much different from Christ's, the disciples ultimately recognized His mission to be their mission and, after His resurrection, it became as important to them as it was to Jesus Christ.

Whereas the citizens of this planet are likely to label such devotion to Christ's cause as religious fanaticism, He expected this kind of devotion from those who followed Him.

This may be the reason that,
whereas there are many worshipers,
there appear to be few followers.

God has blessed the world with beauty and abundance;
you are, as His beloved children,
to receive His gifts and to enjoy them.

They are not, however, to assume priority in your lives—any more than the gifts that children receive from their parents are to be more important to them than the parents themselves.

Thus your eternal Parent expects the loyalty and obedience of His children.

You are to sow the seed of His kingdom all about you;
many of you will be privileged to reap the fruit as well—
to help gather in the results of that which has been sown.

The task is gigantic; the laborers, the true disciples of the Master-Sower, are few.

Most of those who have been called to labor for God's kingdom are too busy building and establishing their own little kingdoms.

If you are to follow Jesus Christ,
His kingdom, which is the kingdom of His Father,
must be your primary concern.

If this is so,
you will discover far more joy and contentment
in your lives as God's faithful servants than will the masses of your world who labor only for themselves.

John 4:31-38

Eternal Investments

And He called to Him the multitude with His disciples, and said to them, “If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me. For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for My Sake and the Gospel’s will save it.”

Mark 8:34-35

You have been informed that, as God's beloved children, you are the recipients of His eternal grace.
And so you are; Jesus has brought that grace to you;
He became your righteousness before a holy God;
you are His forever.
Now you who are made God's children and who bask joyfully under His shepherdlike care are called and assigned to servanthood—to become givers as well as receivers—to transmit, communicate, channel God's love and grace to humankind about you.
As God revealed His love for you through His self-denial and sacrifice—and through His children who with care and concern brought His life and message to you—you are elected and appointed to bring it to others in your path.
As it did for Jesus, so for you,
this will demand self-denial and cross-carrying.
Cross-carrying means caring—for other people.
It means that you cease making yourself and your needs
the very center of your lives and allow that center
to be occupied by others;

that you cease coddling the burdens you have to bear and reach out to share the burdens of your sisters and brothers.

It is not easy; indeed, it is often very painful, and the courage and strength to do this must come from God and His Spirit within you.

This is, nevertheless, what is involved in following Jesus.
Those who live primarily for themselves are not living at all;
they are the real “losers” in this world.

Those who live, make sacrifices, and bear crosses on behalf of others are the “winners,” the gainers, and they are investing in immortality and eternity.

They shall live forever.

What you are willing to do for your children and loved ones
you are now expected to do for God’s creatures all about you, for they have all become your children and your loved ones
just as every human being is the object of Jesus’ love and concern.

Mark 8:34-38

The Risk of Discipleship

Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head.—Luke 9:58

It is not difficult to make beautiful, generous statements in the excitement and ecstasy
of some new commitment.

The expressions of gratitude and the pledges of love and loyalty that result from some revelation of or insight into God's redeeming love are precious indeed.

They are, nonetheless, often shallow and immature.

There are so many who accept Christ as Savior and Redeemer and verbally, at least, honor Him as Lord, who never mature into disciples.

Apart from being personally solaced and comforted,
the lives of these people never change very much.

They have never really become Christ's disciples and servants.

They are obviously not ready or willing to pay the price involved in the matter of discipleship.

Of course there is a price to pay—or so it seems to you who have never, as Christ did, beheld the glories of God's kingdom.

Because you have not seen nor can possibly comprehend the full meaning of your redemption and the life that awaits you, the things of this world, though they are trinkets

when compared to what is in store for you, are still very important.

Discipleship involves a risk—
or so it will appear in your eyes.
Jesus can at this time only assure you that it is a risk worth taking.

You have nothing to lose and everything to gain
in following after Him.

If you really believe in Him you will,
inspired and encouraged by the Holy Spirit, fling caution to the winds and dare to trust in His words and to obey His commandments.

He does not guarantee perpetual happiness or ecstatic feelings.

He promises, instead, that there will be conflict and pain,
heavy burdens and difficult times.

He promises, as well, Jesus does, that you will never be alone—that He is with you always and will grant you His joy.

Luke 9:57-62

Servanthood Means Involvement

Behold, I send you out as sheep in the midst of wolves; so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves.

Matthew 10:16

God came to you through Jesus Christ.
It was in this manner that He became involved in your agonies and crying needs—even to the point of bearing your sins and receiving upon Himself their guilt and consequences.

It was because of that involvement that He found you and redeemed you—drawing you to Himself and His kingdom.

This involvement continues in your world through those who follow Christ.

Jesus has set the pace; He expects His disciples to keep it.

You are to become involved in humankind's crying needs,
to become identified with people
in their sorrows and joys.

You do this as the servants of Jesus Christ,
and in doing so you represent Him.

Infilled with His love, you are to reflect that love and concern to others about you.

It isn't enough to condemn the distortions of humanity
from the pulpits and pews of your churches;
you are elected to become involved in the blood and tears,
the hurts and sufferings, the oppression and deprivation of God's creatures on Main Street or in marketplace, in suburb and ghetto, wherever they may be found.

Because you are already involved in the sickness of this world, you must, if you follow Jesus,
now become involved in its cure.

This will not be convenient or comfortable.
It might even be dangerous.

You may have to risk reputations, wealth,
your status in society, even your very lives,
in this involvement.

Following Jesus, however, requires this kind of involvement.
As He suffered on your behalf, you are expected to suffer

on behalf of others for His sake, to lose your lives in service to them only to find them anew in the incomparable joy of being the sons or daughters of the living God and His loyal disciples and followers.
“As the Father has sent Me, even so I send you,”
Jesus once said to His disciples.
This is what He is saying to you.

Matthew 10:5-33; John 20:21

Effective Evangelism

Whatever house you enter, first say, “Peace be to this house!” And if a son of peace is there, your peace shall rest upon him; but if not, it shall return to you. . . . Heal the sick in it and say to them, “The kingdom of God has come near to you.”—Luke 10:5-6, 9

You are well aware that God is not confined to your church sanctuaries and altars.
While your worship gatherings are important and not to be ignored, your most effective service as Christ’s followers will be carried out during your Monday-through-Saturday contacts with your fellow beings on the streets, in offices and classrooms, workshops and homes.
Before you can effectively proclaim the Gospel of His love and the presence of the kingdom,

you must identify and relate to people where they are.
This means that you become friendly with people,
listen to them—their joys and their sorrows,
minister to them at the point of their greatest need,
share with them of your abundance,
receive from them what they desire to share with you.
If you do this out of genuine, God-inculcated love for these people, the time will come when you can announce the presence of the kingdom and the love of God
as revealed through Jesus Christ,
their Savior and Redeemer.
Or, through your faithfulness,
you may have prepared the way for others to make that all-important announcement.

Of course, there are dangers and risks.
You are, indeed,
exposed like “lambs in the midst of wolves”
to the scorn and hostility of those who are not ready or able to accept you or the God you represent.
It is a hard, rough road that Christ urges you to travel.
He has called you, however, to follow Him.
This means that He has gone before you and will continue to lead you.
It means, as well, that Jesus will grant you the strength to endure, and promises you joy
in the midst of suffering, and always holds before you the assurance of ultimate victory.
And remember, He is with you at all times.

Luke 10:1-12

This Is Revolution

I came to cast fire upon the earth; and would that it were already kindled!—Luke 12:49

While many who claim Christianity as their religion interpret Christ's coming into the world as the only hope for universal peace and as a promise of eternal security, Jesus would remind you who truly want to follow Him that His coming was for quite another reason. The Gospel He brought is radical; the kingdom of God that He introduced and to which you subscribe is revolutionary. It was so radical to the Jews of His day that they cast Jesus out of their synagogues and eventually executed Him on a cross. The Gospel ascribed to Christ today and as proclaimed in many of your churches has become refined and respectable. It has consequentially become diluted and impotent. It has succeeded in bringing healing to some, contentment to others, and the promise of God's forgiveness and everlasting life to all, but it has failed to change the hearts of most of those who feign acceptance and therefore appears to have little effect on the world at large. The reason is obvious:

most participants of the Christian faith have tempered the Gospel to fit their own superficial needs and desires without the threat to their comforts and conveniences.

Jesus dares to expect more from you who would follow Him.
You will soon discover—if you follow Him—that the kind of peace He brings is the very instigator of revolution, that conflict and division
    are necessary consequences of the Gospel.

And if you follow Him, you will discover, in some measure, that the life you live and the stands you take
    and the words you speak will sometimes engender division and conflict—even among those you love the most—
    which may result in suffering and persecution.

This is happening among His faithful followers throughout the world today; it may happen to you.

To follow Christ means that you put your jobs, incomes, interpersonal relationships, even your very lives on the line in order that the kingdom of His Father will be advanced throughout this world.

Luke 12:49-53

In a Conflict of Loyalties

So therefore, whoever of you does not renounce all that he has cannot be My disciple.—Luke 14:33

Jesus is, indeed, the Prince of peace, and you can follow Him
only if you have His peace within yourselves—the peace of sins forgiven, the joy of being His redeemed and chosen servants and ministers,
the security of life everlasting.

It is only when you are fortified with that divine peace that you will be able to confront the violence of this world with courage and the hostility of its citizens with love.

Christ's true followers are not those who retreat from the evils of this world to secure themselves until the kingdom is fulfilled and fully revealed,
but those who are involved,
even at the risk of life and goods,
in the midst of the world's conflicts and revolutions
and are there touching people with God's love and healing.

Christ's true followers must also regard His leadership and purposes as more important than everything else in their lives—even their very families.

Whereas you are to be faithful and responsible to those whom you love the most, your relationship to the kingdom of God enlightens and broadens your love and extends your responsibilities to all of God's creatures about you.

Every human being becomes your brother or sister.

You may, at times, be called to take some stand or pursue some objective
that will wring the hearts of those you love
and cause division within your families.

In a conflict of loyalties you must obey God at all costs.

He has first call and claim upon your lives;
every other loyalty and relationship must be subjected to your loyalty and relationship to God and His purposes.

What Jesus is saying is that if you cannot accept and commit yourselves to this God as He has revealed Him, it would be better that you return to the gods that are more comfortable to worship and make no demands on you.

Remember, however, that they are false gods that can deliver nothing save darkness and despair.

Jesus invites you to follow Him even while He warns you and suggests that you count the cost of such a decision—then He urges you to come and experience the joy of being the children and servants of the living God.

Mark 3:31-35; Luke 14:25-35

Following Boldly

And everyone who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or lands, for My name's sake, will receive a hundredfold, and inherit eternal life.

Matthew 19:29

Jesus' first disciples literally left everything—their homes, families, jobs, property—to follow after Him.

He promised them that in the new world, the kingdom of God,
they would receive a hundredfold more of everything they left behind.

This is His promise to you who follow Him.

Though previously expressed in human, comprehensible terms,
He promises you that the regrets, sorrows, pains incurred by your decision to follow Him as the Savior and Lord of your lives will fade into insignificance in the joy of life and service in the kingdom of the Father.

He could not say any more than this for you are not capable of understanding it;
there is no language in the world that can explain or describe it.

He seeks only to assure you that it is beyond anything you can possibly imagine.

Thus He knows that there is no risk in subjecting yourselves to the pain of self-denial and cross-bearing on His behalf, and He persists in urging you to make what appears to you as a hazardous, risk-filled decision, to trust Him, to boldly walk with Him down the difficult paths of this world.

Those who invest everything—their gifts of life, time, talents, worldly possessions—in their own physical welfare or happiness eventually lose it all.

The end result is emptiness and despair.

Those who invest their God-given lives and talents in Jesus Christ and His purposes will discover what true life is all about.

They will inherit life eternal.

If you are intent upon serving Christ, you must follow Him.
You must go where He goes, be where He is,
do what you know He would do.

Then, wherever you are, there He is also.
Inasmuch as you follow and serve Him

by being the loving servants of people around you, you are honoring and serving your Father in heaven.

Matthew 19:27-30; John 12:24-26

Love One Another

A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another; even as I have loved you, that you also love one another.—John 13:34

You know that you can never measure up to God's standards by your efforts alone.

And this is true despite your sincerity or the various religious exercises you pursue.

It is for this reason that Christ came to you and died on the cross for your sins, setting you free from sin's bondage and canceling out guilt forever.

Thus, while you are yet sinners, you are saints,
God's children, Christ's disciples.

The sure evidence of this relationship is God's love for you reflected and demonstrated in your love for one another.

Whereas the original commandments may not have taught you much about love, it was and is clearly revealed to you by Christ's life and ministry in this world.

Now you are ready to adopt a new commandment,
a new ethic, one that was only dimly revealed and scarcely understood until Jesus came to this world.

It is the commandment to love one another.

There is no other way to indicate your sainthood—though many of you may rely on symbols and religious services to proclaim your identity as Christians.

Those symbols and religious exercises may mean something to you, but they hardly impress your peers around you.

If you are to follow Jesus, you must, by the grace of God and the work of His Spirit within you, learn what it means to love one another.

The standard or quality of such love is manifested in the way and manner in which He loves you.

It does not come naturally, this kind of love.

It is not easy, or even safe, to love others.

There are risks involved—

the one who loves becomes vulnerable.

But the alternative is damnation—

the lovelessness and loneliness of hell.

Love one another, you who follow Jesus,

and you will thereby channel divine love to one another—

and into the spent, lonely lives of others who cross your paths.

John 13:31-35

If You Really Believe

Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes in Me will also do the works that I do; and greater works than these will he do, because I go to the Father.—John 14:12

If you really believe in Jesus Christ and commit yourselves to God through Him, then you will embrace His purposes and obey His commands

and emulate His life and activities.

He brought the kingdom of God into your midst;
you will be held responsible for living and serving as citizens of the new kingdom and through your witness and work extending that kingdom in your community and world.

You will be privileged to see in your time much greater things than Jesus did when He was upon your world.

Jesus will be with you;
He will be working within and through you.
This was the reason He withdrew His physical presence from the world—that He might return to you through His Spirit that indwells you and thereby carry out the purposes of His Father on this planet.

God will bless you and guide you;
He will grant you the things you need to live and witness joyfully and effectively.

You, however, are Christ's brothers and sisters to whom He has delegated the responsibility of communicating His love and healing to your peers, of being God-incarnate in your generation.

He cannot reach them except through you.

It is an awesome responsibility; it is a joyful one as well.
Jesus promises you all that you need to accomplish the task for which He has redeemed and chosen you.
You must pledge Him your faithfulness—your obedience—even amidst the sufferings and frustrations that will come your way.

Christ will be faithful to you; He will be with you;
He will grant you His joy and peace;
He will prepare a place for you in the eternal kingdom of His Father.
“Let not your hearts be troubled, neither let them be afraid,” He says to you.

John 14:12-17, 25-27

Reason for Celebration

Nevertheless do not rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you; but rejoice that your names are written in heaven.—Luke 10:20

You remember and often reenact
the last meal Jesus had with His disciples before He was betrayed and executed.
He revealed to them, thereby,
a way in which they could be assured of His presence even if He could no longer physically be with them.
Ever since that very special time with His beloved followers, the breaking and eating of the bread and the drinking of the wine, revealing His body and blood and blessed by His Word, has been a tangible manifestation of His perpetual presence with those who love and follow Him.
This meal was originally with Christ’s disciples.

It continues, in its reenactment,
to be for His disciples alone.

This is His gift to you—to assure you of your forgiven and redeemed relationship to Him and His Father in heaven, to strengthen and encourage you in the great task before you,
to convince you of His continued presence with you,
to grant you joy and unity with your brothers and sisters who follow Him and who together with you make up Christ's body
at work in the world today.

Come together often to worship God and to be touched by His Spirit in this very real and special way through this bread and wine.

Celebrate always God's grace and love that led to your salvation.

May your joy be centered not upon the visible successes and accomplishments that may result from your faithful obedience, but upon the assurance that you are truly God's beloved sons and daughters, are citizens of His kingdom,
and the recipients of life everlasting.

It is His love that is revealed to seeking hearts through you,
His comfort and healing that mends broken lives;
by His redeeming grace are sin-ridden men and women restored to His will and orbit for their lives.

Love God and follow Jesus Christ;
then the Father's kingdom will be advanced and His purposes accomplished through you.

Matthew 26:26-29; Luke 10:17-20
